BRITISH CHAMBERS CONFERRING HERE PASS RESOLUTIONS

Views Given On Tariff And Removal Of Chinese Interport Duties

CONCESSIONS DISCUSSED

Internal Disorder, Copyright And Drugs Among Other Subjects Taken Up

A list of important subjects were dealt with yesterday at sessions of the second annual conference of British Chambers of Commerce in China and Hongkong.

The subjects of the resolutions discussed, which are given in fuller detail below, included China companies, tariff revision, aids to navigation, copyright restrictions, the Russian and German concessions, disorder in China, opium and morphine, crown leases and the famine.

The following resolutions were passed at yesterday's morning session:

CHINA COMPANIES

"That this Conference considers it desirable that enquiry be made into the advisability of legislation being enacted whereby the word 'British' or other word or words of similar import be appended to the names of all China Companies, present or future, following the word 'limited' and that the Secretary to the Association be instructed to institute these inquiries at as early a date as possible."

TARIFF REVISION

"That this Conference desires to express the view that the additional revenue accruing from any revision of the existing Import Duties should be held in trust until such time as the Chinese Government shall have shown itself capable of maintaining order and protecting trade interests throughout the country.

"At the same time it desires to express the opinion that when the time for such revision shall arise advantage should be taken of the opportunity so presented to press for the reorganisation of the whole system of taxation of trade in China on the lines suggested in the Association's letter of April 21, 1920, and that as a preliminary and practical step in this direction the Chinese Government be pressed to abolish forthwith the taxation now levied by the Chinese Maritime Customs on all goods carried from one port to another in China."

AIDS TO NAVIGATION

"That in view of the fact that the Hongkong Government has approved the use of Diaphones and Wireless Position Finders as used in European, American and Canadian Waters, and intends shortly to install these at the approaches to Hongkong Harbor, this Conference is of opinion that China through the Maritime Customs should similarly install such aids to navigation on the China Coast.

"Further that weather signals and cable communications should also be considered in connection with the Wireless Position Finders, more especially in view of the recent frequent stoppages of the Swatow Hongkong Shanghai Telegraph services and that a sufficient powerful wireless installation should be established at Swatow in conjunction with one at Hongkong at the earliest possible moment to provide telegraphic and wireless communication with Hongkong and other places which is at present inadequate."

COPYRIGHT LAWS

"That in connection with the resolution passed at the last Conference urging the advisability of instituting Copyright Laws in China this Conference now desires to express the opinion that further representations should be addressed to the Chinese Government with a view to securing its adhesion to the Union for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works created under the Convention signed at Berne on September 9, 1886, by the Governments of Great Britain, Belgium, France, Germany, Hayti, Italy, Liberia, Spain, Switzerland and Tunis."

The following resolutions were passed at the afternoon session.

RUSSIAN AND GERMAN CONCESSIONS

"This conference views with grave concern the attitude of the Chinese Government, which, in assuming control of areas formerly under foreign jurisdiction, has deprived Treaty Power nationals of their rights in regard to the ownership of land and Municipal representation. This Conference accordingly urges upon H. M. Government the supreme importance of safeguarding to the

Bolshevists Execute Officers Charged With Conspiracy

BODY OF W.H. BRUN FOUND IN RIVER, BELIEVED SUICIDE

Advertising Solicitor Was Missing Since Sunday Night; Inquest Today

The body of Mr. Will H. Brun, American, who had been employed as advertising solicitor for the Shanghai Mercury and contributed to the paper under the name of "Cheerio," was found in the Whangpoo River early yesterday afternoon near The Point.

Mr. Brun was last seen alive Sunday night at 8:30 o'clock and a letter written before his death, which indicates that he contemplated suicide, was turned over to the police Monday. The department made a thorough search of Shanghai in an attempt to locate Mr. Brun and it was thought that he had left on a river steamer.

The body was found by Chinese, the River police were notified and Acting Chief Detective Officer John Burnside of the Settlement police made the identification. The body had evidently been in the river three or four days.

Mr. Brun came to Shanghai from Japan last July. He was 43 years old and was married, having resided at the Continental Hotel on Szechuen Road.

An inquest will be held at the United States Court for China this morning by Commissioner F. J. Schuhl, who will act as corner. The inquest will be at 9 o'clock.

STRIKE NEARING END IS BELIEF AS MINERS VOTE

Opposition To Peace Terms Appears To Be Overcome By Conservatives

WALES SEAT OF TROUBLE

Hartshorn Denies Betrayal Of Of Unions And Makes Resignation Threat

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

London, November 2.—Only three results have hitherto been declared in the miners' ballot on the strike settlement terms, which began yesterday and ends today. Two of these show substantial but not overwhelming majorities in favor of acceptance of the Government's terms, but the third shows unmistakable opposition to the latest proposals. Hostile resolutions have been passed by many centers, particularly in Wales, where the extremists advocate a "fight to the last barricade."

OPINION DIFFERS

There is a marked divergence of opinion apparent in many other fields, but it is generally anticipated that the final result will show a good majority in favor of peace. The strike can only be continued if there is a two-thirds majority against acceptance of the terms.

A sensational step has been taken by Mr. Vernon Hartshorn M. P. who has threatened to resign his positions as officer of the South Wales Miners' Federation and member of the National Executive of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain as a protest against the allegations that he and Mr. Brace, M. P., were betraying the miners' movement.

HARTSHORN NOT EXTREMIST

Mr. Hartshorn, who was recently regarded as a probably successor of Mr. Smillie as President of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, is credited with holding advanced views, but he is clearly not prepared to ally himself with the extremists.

The result of the ballot will be considered by a delegate meeting to be held tomorrow.

ENGLISH VOTERS REJECT LABOR MEN AT POLLS

Independents Who Advocate Reduced Rates Win Municipal Offices

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 2.—An analysis of the returns in the municipal election contests which took place in the English provincial boroughs yesterday indicates that the Labor party's big bid for municipal control was badly defeated. The figures for 70 boroughs whose results are published show that out of 747 Labor candidates 199 were returned and 548 defeated.

Labor met with its worst defeats at Liverpool and Bradford, where the entire Labor tickets of 23 candidates in each case failed to win a single seat.

A similar complete failure is reported from 16 other boroughs, while in only two instances, viz., Norwich and Rotherham—were all the Labor candidates returned.

There was no marked change as between Liberals and Conservatives, but Independent candidates who advocated the reduction of rates met with considerable success.

Germans Attempt To Evade Allies' Order

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, November 1.—The German Government has despatched a detailed reply to the demand of the ambassadors' conference for the destruction of the Diesel motors used in German submarines during the war, pointing out that the treaty of Versailles does not speak of the destruction, but only of the breaking up of the U-boats. The reply contends that this shows clearly that it was not intended to make them absolutely unusuable.

Vienna, November 2.—The Reparations Commission has authorised the Austrian Government, upon the security of its famous Gobelin tapestries, to raise a sum sufficient to purchase 60,000 tons of foodstuffs.

LORD LOREBURN PRESENTS NEW IRISH POLICY

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 2.—In the House of Lords today, Lord Loreburn, a former Liberal Lord Chancellor, proposed a motion condemning the Sinn Fein murders, denouncing the policy of police reprisals and urging the creation of a complete measure of self-government in Ireland, to include fiscal autonomy, but reserving to the Imperial Parliament the control of the Army, Navy and foreign affairs.

In the course of the debate the Archbishop of Canterbury severely condemned the reprisals, which, he said "had besmirched the reputation of England."

Lord Curzon, as leader of the Government in the Upper House said he had nothing to add to recent Government statements on the Irish question. He pointed out that there were defects in Lord Loreburn's scheme of fiscal autonomy. It was the immoderate men who were in overwhelming majority in Ireland, and what, he asked, was the good of offering concessions which would only satisfy the moderates when the majority wanted an independent republic?

Lord Loreburn's motion was rejected by 44 votes to 13.

Dublin, November 3.—A fresh crop of outrages is reported, including attacks on police and reprisals in the Tralee district. It is said that several deaths and injuries to many have resulted, and that the trouble is so serious that the townspeople are fleeing in fear.

Solid South In U.S. Congress Is Broken By G.O.P. Victory

NEW CABINET TO BE MADE UP OF MEN OF DEEDS

Prospective Members Of High Council Have Records Of Achievement

(U. S. Naval Radio)

New York, November 4.—Speculation is now rife regarding Senator Harding's probable selections for the Cabinet. It is said that Mr. H. M. Daugherty and ex-senator J. W. Weeks are most frequently mentioned. Mr. Daugherty, who is a barrister, is regarded as a possible choice for the Attorney-General'ship. Ex-Senator Weeks, it is hinted, may become Naval Secretary. Mr. G. W. Wickersham, formerly Attorney-General, has been mentioned in connection with the portfolios of War and Justice, while Senator Wadsworth is also being discussed in connection with the former office.

Mr. Henry Walker, Congressman Esch and Senator Fall and Smoot also figure in the post-election gossip. The possibility that a woman may be appointed to the new Cabinet is suggested by Senator Harding's proposal of a new Department of Public Welfare.

New York, November 4.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Elihu Root, Senator Philander C. Knox, and C. E. Hagges are mentioned as possibilities for the office of Secretary of State in Harding's cabinet. Chairman Will H. Hayes of the Republican National Committee and J. T. King of Connecticut are speculative choices for the office of postmaster-general. Gossip assigns Mr. Glover to the office of Secretary of the Treasury or Secretary of the Interior. General John J. Pershing and General Leonard Wood are mentioned as possibilities for Secretary of War.

General Li Shun's Body Taken Home

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, November 3.—The remains of Gen. Li Shun arrived here yesterday from Nanking and were met at the station by representatives of the President, Provincial President and Civil Governor, also by local notables and numerous students.

The body was conveyed to the deceased's former residence, where it is now lying. The date of the funeral celebrations is not yet announced.

KEY TO CRIMEA IS CAPTURED BY BOLSHEVISTS

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 1.—The Red offensive against General Wrangel appears to be meeting with considerable success. A Bolshevik communique today claims the capture of Perekop which is "the key to the Crimea," after overcoming fierce resistance at Nojav.

This claim is substantiated by a message from Reuter's Constantinople correspondent, which states that General Wrangel is falling back behind Perekop and that one division has suffered heavy losses. The attacking Bolshevik forces are estimated at 140,000 men.

PROPOSE BLOCKADE

Washington, Nov. 2.—The United States has been asked its attitude with regard to a blockade of South Russia in order to assist General Wrangel. The State Department is asking for further information. It is not disclosed what Government made the inquiry or what European countries agree to a blockade but it is understood that Italy is opposed to it.

LAND LAW BILL WILL NOT STOP JAPAN PARLEY

Negotiations With Government To Continue Despite California Act

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 3.—In California the anti-alien land law amendment, to prohibit the ownership of land by Japanese, has apparently met with strong approval. In 1200 precincts 133,949 votes were cast in favor of its adoption, as against 41,165 in opposition to it.

(U. S. Naval Radio)

Washington, November 4.—The adoption of the anti-alien land law in California will not affect the continuance of negotiations here between Ambassador Shidehara of Japan and the State Department concerning the status of Japanese in California and the general subject of Japanese immigration, it was learned today.

It is said here that the result of the election was fully discounted because negotiations have progressed so far that if a treaty is concluded, it may reach the Senate this Winter.

The absence from Washington of Mr. Roland E. Morris, United States Ambassador to Japan, has only temporarily delayed the negotiations and when he returns this week the conferences will be resumed.

Ambassador Shidehara conferred today with Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby.

It is understood that the discussion between Messrs. Morris and Shidehara have so progressed that the plan they have in mind will soon be ready for presentation to President Wilson, Secretary of State Colby and the Foreign Office.

Britons Going From England To Colonies In Large Numbers

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 2.—Replying to a question by Mr. R. Clough (Keighley) in the House of Commons today, Col. Amery, Under-Secretary for the Colonies, stated that 115,369 British subjects removed from the United Kingdom to other parts of the Empire in 1919, and 97,916 during the first two quarters of 1920.

Col. Amery suggested that the word "emigration"—with its implied suggestion of expatriation by the individual, and of loss by the community he leaves—should be confined to the movement of persons to foreign countries, and that movement within the Empire should be described by some such term as "oversea settlement."

REPUBLICANS TO BE IN CONTROL OF LAWMAKING

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch Makes Hard Fight Against Overwhelming Odds

(Reuter's Service)

New York, November 3.—Republican control of Congress for another two years, with an increased majority in the House of Representatives, and a prospective increase in the Senate are the chief features of the election sweep. A new gain of 20 seats in the lower house is shown in the complete returns of only 16 States, including some former Democratic strongholds. The Republicans expect a majority of eight or ten in the next Senate.

CLARK DEFEATED

(U. S. Naval Wireless)

New York City, November 24.—The defeat of Representative Champ Clark of Missouri was one of the election surprises. He had served in the House since 1897 and at the Democratic Convention in Baltimore, eight years ago, received a majority of the convention votes for President when Wilson was finally chosen as the candidate.

A Republican was elected to the House from Texas.

The Republicans will have a majority of around 100 in the House compared to the present majority of forty odd.

Incomplete returns indicate that Kentucky will send seven Democrats and two Republicans to Congress.

Congressman Charles H. Randall, Prohibitionist from California, was beaten in the race for congress in the ninth district by Vandewar.

G. O. P. WINS JERSEY

Out of 12 Congressional districts in New Jersey, the Republicans won ten.

Speaker Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts, Joseph W. Fordney of Michigan, Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania' Julius Kahn of California and Thomas S. Butler of Pennsylvania were returned to their seats in the House.

Congressman E. B. Howard, Democrat, of Oklahoma, has conceded the election of his Republican opponent, Chancler.

New York, November 4.—The Democrats claim the re-election of Reed Smoot, Utah.. Other Democratic senators re-elected are Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, and Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida. Thomas succeeds Hoke Smith as senator from Georgia.

Among the Republican senators elected after a hard contest were Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, who was opposed for re-election by Paul S. Reinsch, former United States Minister to China, Spencer of Missouri, Wesley L. Jones of Washington and Samuel Shortridge of California. Shortridge defeated James D. Phelan.

HARDING GIVEN ASSURANCE OF 346 ELECTORS

Republicans Believed To Be Governors In Two Dixie States

President-elect Warren G. Harding is assured of 346 electoral votes, the Republicans have a majority of ten in the Senate and around 100 in the House of Representatives, and indications are that the "Solid South" in Congress is broken for the first time since the period of reconstruction.

The Southern United States gave Cox 127 electoral votes. But a Republican has been elected to Congress from Texas, the election of a Republican governor in Tennessee is probable and the same is apparently true in Louisiana. In Tennessee and Louisana the vote accorded Harding was a surprise to both Republicans and Democrats.

Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin defeated Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, former United States Minister to China, who accepted the Democratic nomination, while he was in China last Summer. According to the wireless reports, the battle was a close one.

Champ Clark of Missouri was beaten after 23 years' service in the House; Tennessee hung by a narrow margin before swerving to the Democrats; 17 states that voted Democratic four years ago went Republican this year.

It was indeed the most impressive Republican victory in history.

'LEAGUE ISSUE MISTAKE'

New York, November 4.—In answer to congratulations received from all parts of the United States President-elect Harding declared that the election result spells the elimination of the Democratic Party from American politics.

Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, expressed bitter disappointment over the result of the election.

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, Democrat, declared that the fight on the League of Nations issue was a tragic mistake.

FRENCH INTERESTED

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 3.—According to the Temps, Senator Harding is assured of 343 votes in the Electoral College, which comprises 531 members, while Governor Cox will have only 159, and 29 are doubtful.

Paris, November 3.—Thanks to the enterprise of the Chicago Tribune, the American colony in Paris were able to follow, on Tuesday evening, the vicissitudes of the Presidential election. As fast as the results were received they were shown on a screen in the Marigny theater.

New York, November 2.—The betting was 10 to 1 in favor of Senator Harding when the presidential election began. Despite the inclement weather, the largest poll in history is expected, owing to the addition of 9,000,000 women voters to the register, making a total electorate of 29,000,000.

New York, November 2.—Election returns, as they continue to arrive, establish more clearly the fact that Senator Warren G. Harding and his Republican followers have scored an overwhelming victory. With the exception of the South, the entire country appears to have voted Republican in one of the greatest political landslides of recent years.

RETURNS COME RAPIDLY

The Republicans have definitely won in 21 States, while with 15 States still to be heard from, Senator Harding is certain of 275 electoral votes. Both he and Governor Calvin Coolidge, the party candidate for the vice-presidency, are assured of large pluralities, while substantial gains in both Houses of Congress render a Republican Senate and House of Representatives certain.

Returns from 1637 precincts out of 6154 in California showed 193,733 votes for Senator Harding and 65,662 for Governor Cox. Senator James D. Phelan has received 31,919 votes, and his Republican opponent, Mr. Shortridge, 69,109 in the California senatorial contest thus far.

SWEEPING VICTORY

New York, November 3.—One of the most sweeping victories in the history of the Republican party has been recorded

Expert From U.S. Here To Build $2,000,000 Mint For Chinese Government

Mr. Clifford Hewitt of Philadelphia, who is probably America's leading expert in the operation of mints, is here—loaned by the American Government to China—to install in Shanghai what may become the biggest mint in the world and the first to be established by the Chinese Government.

The project for the Shanghai mint, a thing talked of and planned for years, is the first move definitely to stablise China's currency and to end the conglomerate systems of currency of all kinds and values that so long have been a drag on the commercial progress of the country.

Mr. Hewitt comes to Shanghai after completing the installation of the new mint at Manila, the first established under the government of the Philippines and it is due in some measures to the chance that he was chosen to build the mint in the Philippines that his services have been made available to the Chinese government. He is accompanied by Mrs. Hewitt, their two sons, Messrs. H. F. and C. B. Hewitt, and their daughter, Miss Margaret Hewitt.

HAS LIFE EXPERIENCE

Mr. Hewitt has given his life to his specialty and in the 24 years that he has been in the service of the United States Government he has not only been identified with the building and development of most of the big minting plants in America but, having been closely identified with the mechanical evolution of coin making of a quarter of a century, he has originated many of the machines and processes now in use in American mints. His inventions, of course, have been of a character to preclude any general use as patents, being owned by the American Government.

Mr. Hewitt built the great mint at Denver, Colorado in the heart of the western American metal producing country, completing the installation of this plant in 1905. Beside devoting attention to work on other mint plants in the United States in recent years he installed the mechanical equipments of the government exhibits at the St. Louis, Missouri Exposition and the recent Exposition at San Francisco in 1915. It was he who built and installed the equipment of the Philadelphia mint, the largest in the world.

PLANT TO COST $2,000,000

Present plans indicate that the plant to be built in Shanghai for the Chinese Government will rival in size and output the great mint at Philadelphia, as it will run in ultimate cost probably to $2,000,000 and is to have a capacity of five hundred thousand silver dollars per day. This means a daily consumption of 14 tons of silver in addition to baser metal used as alloys.

While it is understood that the Chinese Government has been arranging to procure a site no public announcement concerning its whereabouts has yet been issued, though it is thought that the new mint will be located within the limits of the International Settlement. Architectural details of the structure to be erected—whether it is to be one-story, which means that its dimensions, would run to 500 feet by 500 feet—or whether of more than one story are yet to be decided.

TWO YEARS TO BUILD

Mr. Hewitt said yesterday that according to liberal estimates it is probable that the entire plant can be completed and be in operation issuing silver dollars in two years.

Much of the machinery to be used in the plant to be erected will be built here in China under Mr. Hewitt's personal direction. Other portions of the equipment of the new mint as well as building materials to be used in the structure must be brought from the United States. Details concerning the future administration of the institution have not yet been made public.

with the election of Senator Harding and a Republican Congress by huge, and in many cases unparalleled, pluralities. Beginning with the first returns yesterday, and as the counting of the ballots continued, Democratic National leaders conceded their party defeat in the presidency and Congress on the basis of the crushing vote, despite the absence of the final official returns.

With the presidency and Congress went most of the Governor's seats, and the break threatened to extend into some of the border states, hitherto regarded as solid ground for the Democrats during the campaign.

Some of the Southern States, swelling the highest pluralities since the Civil War, assured Senator Harding of 329 electoral votes as against 127 for Governor Cox. Unofficial returns indicate a larger majority for Governor Coolidge as Vice-President than any secured since 1888, except President Wilson's victory in 1912.

WOMEN DELAY COUNT

On its first trial in a presidential campaign, women's suffrage contributed largely to the Republican majorities. It was also a factor in delaying the count in many States.

The first act of the defeated presidential candidate today was to telegraph his congratulations to Senator Harding. He stated that in the spirit of the American people he accepted the decision of the majority, and in tendering the successful candidate his congratulations, he pledged his support as a citizen to the new executive authority in any emergency which might arise.

November 4.—President Woodrow Wilson made no comments on the result of the election. He has not congratulated President-elect Warren G. Harding.

Admiral Grayson, President Wilson's physician, expressed the view that the election has apparently not affected Wilson's health.

Detroit, November 4.—The Republicans made a clean sweep in Michigan.

St. Paul, November 4.—Harding carried Minnesota three to one.

Indianapolis, November 4.—Harding carried Indiana with a plurality of over 250,000.

St. Louis, November 4.—Harding carried Missouri. The Republicans had wide majorities in both State and National elections.

SIX NEGROES KILLED

Orlando, Fla., November 4.—Five negroes were burned to death and another hanged to a tree in a fight which started at polls at Ocole, nearby, last night after election officials refused to permit Mose Norman, a negro, to vote because of an unpaid poll-tax. Two whites were shot and killed and several others, including an ex-police chief, were wounded. A fight preceded the wholesale lynching. The negroes met death near the house where they had congregated; the house was fired and the mob took six negroes from it, burned five and hanged one in a tree.

Far Eastern State Passes On Moneys

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, November 3.—It is reported from Chita that the All-Far-Eastern Conference has elected a temporary Government, pending the arrival of the Vladivostok delegates. The principals of the Far Eastern Republic have resolved that the following moneys shall be valid in the buffer-state, Soviet, Verkhne-Udinsk, Vladivostok, Romanoff and Blagoveshchensk issues dated prior to the first instant.

A Commission was appointed to work out election laws, and it was decided to accept those in force for the 1917 elections for the All-Russian Duma, with minor alterations to suit the sparsely-populated districts in the Far East.

A further message from Chita reports that M. Karahan, the Soviet Assistant Commissary for Foreign Affairs, is expected to visit the Far East.

CONSTANTINE IN MOVE TO TAKE FORMER POWERS

Deposed King Of Greece Is Believed To Be In Restoration Plot

(Reuter's Service)

Lucerne, November 1.—Prince Paul's reply to Greece is regarded as ex-King Constantine's first move to regain the throne.

When the Greek Minister at Berne called upon Prince Paul to inform him that the Greek Government considered that he was called upon to ascend the throne, Prince Paul replied that he would communicate his answer later. The ex-King Constantine, Prince Paul and Dr. Streit the former Greek Foreign Minister, then held a consultation and drew up the terms of the reply (cabled earlier).

The reply stated in addition that neither Prince Paul's father nor elder brother had ever renounced their rights, but both had been obliged to leave Greece in obedience to the dictates of patriotic duty. The reply insists that ex-King Constantine has always been willing to abide by the wishes of the people.

The members of the ex-King's entourage are delighted with the reply and consider that it will place M. Venizelos in a very difficult position.

London, November 1.—The Daily Mail declares, in connection with the reports of Prince Paul's reply, that "Tino's new plot gives evidence of the need for perpetual vigilance against the Germans" and adds that "the Allies cannot tolerate a brother-in-law of the ex-Kaiser on the throne of Greece."

Jiggs Not Impressed By Japan Factories

Passenger lists carried in the Japan papers convey the reassuring news that Mr. Horatius Q. Jiggs accompanied by his wife, Maggie, and daughter, Nora, reached Yokohama practically intact.

The Jiggses made a very brief stay in the Japanese port, which is a considerable center in the rolling pin industry, but left immediately for Shanghai and are expected to arrive here today or tomorrow. They will rest up over the week-end and will be at home and ready to receive their many Shanghai friends at the Apollo after Sunday.

The Quintet

The Town Hall should have been packed for the concert of the Skidelsky Quintet Tuesday night, first by reason of the excellence of the players, and secondly because some of their effects are lost in a partially filled room of such resonance. At the front the "ring" is so great that instruments detach themselves and "come up behind" the hearer in a way that is disconcerting. The quartet of string players and the pianist are young men of masterly attainments.

They played the two favorite Tchaikovsky works, the ever-delightful Quartet in D, and the Piano Trio—now so popular here—in a style that places them first among any visitors in this genre.

The audience, by no means a small one, showed appreciation of this, and became enthusiastic at the solo playing of Mr. I. Gilersberg the pianist. His playing of Liszt's "Spanish Rhapsody" marks him out as a technician of truly tremendous attainments. As an encore he gave another astonishing piano transcription (in the Liszt manner) of "Eugene Onegin." Mr. Gilersberg no doubt intended to convince us of his prodigious powers in this choice of pieces; but he is much more than a mere technician, as his playing in ensemble showed in tone and feeling. His energy and rhythmic precision are concealed under a deceptively quiet manner. The tone and finish of the Quintet so satisfied that we can only hope for further concerts, in a smaller hall, and an opportunity for a larger notice than space allows on this occasion.

Note—Because of the American election returns a shortage of space caused the above notice to be held over from yesterday.—Ed.)

Many Injured At Japan Celebration

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, November 3.—There were many accidents yesterday among the dense crowds which filled the avenue leading to the Meiji shrine. Packed tram cars and tremendous crowds on foot surged to Hibiya Park, in the vicinity of the Palace, where gigantic arches were brilliantly illuminated.

Smiles from the Mixed Court

Chang Jui-sze, who lives on the Rangoon Road, numbers among her prized possessions a white leghorn hen. That this immaculate and cherished fowl still cackles as an integer of the Chang menage is a circumstance which it is the purpose of this chronicle to explain. The bird has just come through a harrowing experience.

It was along about dusk an evening or so ago that Mme. Dzau Dien-sz, who is one of the Chang's next-door neighbors, stepped to the doorway of her home to admire the sunset, or maybe to yodel a few casual greetings to her friend, Mme. Chang. Be that as it may, neither the sunset nor Mme. Chang received her attention, this being abruptly monopolized by the sight of Chi Tsang-kung, a perfect stranger in the neighborhood, engaged in laying a neat train of rice from the Chang doorstep, past the Dzau house frontage to the corner of the alleyway. Mme. Dzau watched the proceeding with a puzzled expression until she saw Chi assume a crouching attitude at the corner and observed the feathered pride of the Chang household step majestically out of the doorway and begin to eradicate that gleaming white line of rice. Then a light burst upon Mme. Dzau and she addressed herself to Chi in a tone of voice.

He ought to be ashamed of himself, she declared, thus to try and lure an innocent and trusting chicken away from its happy home to some dismal fate—and did he know that Mr. Chang was a very large and short tempered man who set particular store by that fowl—or realise that there was a policeman on the next corner—and besides.—

Chi replied, in a hoarse whisper, that if Mme. Dzau did not immediately set about attending to her own business and get inside that door he would take the cobblestone which he held in his right hand and massage her features with it until one or the other were worn out.

Mme. Dzau, thus admonished, recoiled into the door, slipped out the back way and delivered an excited message to Mme. Chang, who popped out of the Chang front doorway just in time to see a bunch of white leghorn tailfeathers passing rapidly round the corner beneath Chi's arm. She greeted the disappearance with a whoop which thrilled the district and brought three converging policemen and Chi Tsang-kung together before the latter had got fairly under way.

With the two lady witnesses facing him in Court Chi didn't even attempt to explain and the upshot of the whole matter was that he will be boarding for three weeks in a place where chicken is a very, very occasional item in the menu.

Investigator Reveals Details Of Japanese Stand In Shaw Case

British Subject May Be Held In Jail For Many More Months Before He Gets Foreign Counsel

Mr. Junius B. Wood, author of the following article, was in Shanghai recently and went from here to Korea to investigate the Shaw case. The story is printed through the courtesy of THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS for which Mr. Wood is staff correspondent.

Seoul, Chosen (Korea), Oct. 21.—Foreigners in the Orient are as excited today over the strange plight of George L. Shaw as they are over California's coming Japanese referendum. It affects the British the same as the other international complication involves Americans. British newspapers are printing controversial columns about the case in surprised and pained tones at such treatment to a loyal subject of Japan's strongest ally. Though it has already been the cause of questions in the British Parliament, local newspapers are not commenting on account of the law forbidding discussion of prosecutions which have not been completed. It is touch and go whether the unpleasantness fades into a passing incident or becomes the grain of sand interfering with the smooth working machinery of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

AFFECTS CHINA

Regardless of the developments between Japan and England, the remarkable case presents a phase of international law involving every nation, especially America and China. Briefly, the main facts divested of irrevelent surmises and incidentals are that Shaw, a British subject, when he crossed the border into Japan was arrested on account of alleged acts against the Japanese government committed while a resident of China.

Mr. Marayama, acting head of the higher police of Korea, in two hours frank discussion of the arrest explained that Japan is acting according to Japanese law and following the precedents of International law established in continental Europe though the same practices are not followed in England and America. Members of the diplomatic corps of other European countries upon inquiry are inclined to support his contention despite the contentions of certain Britons that Shaw's arrest is an illegal use of force.

FAR REACHING EFFECT

Unless they consider Japanese nature forgiving anti-Japanese agitators in America may hesitate over visiting the Philippines, China or other parts of the Orient. Japan is the first stop of every ship leaving American ports and, under this interpretation of the law, should Japan feel mean it might remove any passenger and try him for actions in America against the peace and happiness of the Japanese government. Possibly this is an extreme illustration since Shaw is accused of considerably more than merely expressing opinions derogratory to Japan.

The first detailed statement of the charges which have been given to any newspaper are that Shaw: first, encouraged Korean revolutionists; second, that he donated his business office in Antung for their meeting place; third, that he imported or manufactured bombs, powder, revolvers, fuses and incendiary literature for distribution and use in Korea and Japan, and fourth, that he defied the Japanese authorities in smuggling Korean conspirators in his ships between Shanghai and Manchuria.

JAPAN'S ATTITUDE

"It is untrue that we acted without first consulting the British representatives, said Mr. Marayama. "Last May when Mr. Shaw prevented Japanese officers from arresting a number of Koreans brought to Antung on his ship Kwellin, we lodged a protest with the British Consul-General. The latter warned Mr. Shaw against continuing acts which were unbecoming on the part of a subject of a nation which is a friendly ally of Japan. Mr. Shaw did discontinue using his office for the conspirators' meetings. However he personally secured a Chinese house for their purposes. More flagrant than this, packages containing bombs, revolvers and revolutionary literature were addressed to Mr. Shaw's residence in order to prevent their seizure by customs officers.

"Naturally British on account of their commercial interests sympathise with Mr. Shaw. He has been arrested three months and we expect the preliminary examination to be concluded in a few weeks. The time is not unusual as prisoners are frequently held six months or a year during preliminary investigations. The conspiracy has many ramifications which it is necessary to investigate thoroughly. He is lodged as comfortably as the law allows for a man in jail, receives visits from his wife and the British Consul and his daily meals are sent from the hotel."

PHOTOGRAPH SHOWN

A photograph was shown of an appalling array of thirteen bombs, eighty revolvers, six fuses, and two packages of powder discovered in a Korean home in South Keisho province, September 22. The police say that the Korean confessed to receiving the deadly supplies through Shaw's underground route. Obviously however this evidence was unknown when Shaw was arrested July 11.

When asked if in case he were found guilty, Shaw would receive a death sentence the same as any citizen conspiring against his own government, the police officials said that the judge would undoubtedly take into consideration the fact that the prisoner was a citizen of another country and mitigate the sentence to a few years imprisonment. They also promised that he would have the fullest opportunity to consult lawyers after the preliminary examination is concluded. At present he has a Japanese lawyer, a Mr. Okuba of Seoul.

Shaw who is rollicking, fat and 50, is the only foreign importers agent in Antung on the Chinese side of the Yalu river. He is a keen business man and represents half a hundred British, Chinese and American concerns, his office doing an annual business of around $2,000,000 a year. He is a member of the Royal Society of Arts in London and various other English social and patriotic clubs. He was active in war work during the war and in charitable contributions since.

BORN AT FOOCHOW

He is a great grandson of the late Sir Robert Shaw, a Scotch nobleman who owned large estate in Ireland. His father was a sea captain and later Lloyd's surveyor in Foochow, China, where Shaw was born. His mother one of the handsome and striking appearing native women of that part of China is said to be still alive in Foochow. A brother, Frederick William Shaw, is a merchant with places of business in Mukden and Harbin. Two sisters are married to Englishmen, Messrs. Summers and Stursberg, in the customs and postal administrations, respectively, in China. Another sister, Miss C. C. Shaw, lives at 6 Edith Road, Kensington West, London. He has numerous friends among the nobility and commercial circles of England. His wife is a Japanese and their two sons are attending St. Joseph's college in Yokohama.

According to his friends when his wife was returning from visiting their sons in Yokohama, Shaw went into Korea to meet her. Though he did not have a passport the Japanese authorities permitted him to enter the country and return on his wife's train until Shingishu on the Japanese side of the Yalu river was reached where both were arrested and taken off the train. The Japanese wife was released a couple of hours later. She continued to Antung and notified Mr. H. Gilbert King, the American vice consul who with Mr. Shotaro Iriye, the Japanese consul, form the consular representation in Antung.

Mr. W. B. Cunningham, a British vice consul, came from Seoul and was permitted to talk to Shaw for ten minutes through a Japanese officer as go-between.

Two weeks later, his friends say, Shaw was led manacled through the streets and taken to Seoul in a crowded third-class coach in daytime. His offer to pay first-class fare for himself and guards so as to secure greater privacy was refused. Later he was permitted the use of a typewriter and to receive periodicals, except newspapers. The censor stopped a bundle of cartoons of "Bringing Up Father" and an Oxford dictionary required ten days to pass his inspection. A special censor has now been appointed.

Belgian Government Seeks To Locate Family Of Lost War Waif

The identity of this boy is puzzling the Belgian Minister of Justice, in whose care he is. The lad was in Brussels in 1914, when the Germans entered the city. He fled and was taken in charge by a French priest, who brought him to America. After a stay in the United States the boy was returned to Belgium. "The Mystery Prince," as he has been nicknamed, says he is Charles Louis and that his father was addressed as M. le Prince. He is said to be most aristocratic in bearing, speech and habits, and it is believed that his parents may be in the United States.

Chinese Is Accused Of Giving "Straw" Bail

Charged with offering "straw" bail for a man involved in a Tls. 4,000 civil action, a Chinese appeared in the Mixed Court before Assessor Tenney and the Chinese Magistrate yesterday, the case being adjourned on application of counsel for defendant, Mr. Paul M. Linebarger.

Dr. Fischer, representing the complainant, and the police stated that they were ready to go ahead with the case, but counsel for the defendant stated that he felt it his duty to give opportunity for a thorough investigation. He understood that there was a presumption that his client did not stand alone in the matter and he wished a clean sweep to be made in the matter. Mr. Linebarger asked the co-operation of the officials of the court and if his client could not show proofs he would have him plead guilty.

GUERILLA WAR IS BEGUN BY KOREAN BANDS

Insurgents Establish Their Strongholds In Hills Of Chientao

FORCES ARE DIVIDED

Fifty Men Assigned To Each Detachment By Patriot Leaders

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Seoul, November 3.—Large forces of armed bandits have retired into the inaccessible mountainous regions of Chientao, whence they have been making frequent raids upon Japanese communications.

Japanese troops in the Lungchieng district, on October 30 dispersed an outlaw band, killing 20 of their number, capturing four of the leaders, and burning their headquarters.

BANDS OF OUTLAWS

There has been much activity on the part of malcontent Koreans, armed with Russian or Japanese rifles, in the Kuangtien district. The leader, Boku Eiko, is organising bands of assassins, of 50 men each, to send out in all direction.

Tokio, November 3.—According to the Kokumin, there are 14 bands of bandits, each comprising about 50 men, in the Ussuri district, the distinguishing mark of these "comrades" being their bootlaces.

"QUEEN OF BANDITS"

Most of their leaders are stated to have Japanese wives. The Chief's wife, named Shizuko Nakamura, who is emaciated through being addicted to opium, is known as the "Queen," and she is stated to exercise a powerful influence among these bandits. Their principal object is loot, but there is a likelihood of their joining up with the Koreans.

Chinese Pastor Is In Charge Of Delegates' Welcome

Mr. Wu Is Executive Secretary Of Reception To Sunday School Men

On one of the cleanest alleyways off Haining Road, just west of Szechuen Road, in a row of Chinese dwellings, lives and works a true Chinese patriot, without braggadocio, but with energy directed constantly for China's welfare. This young man is in complete contrast to the type of man so common now in China, who goes around talking about helping his country but who has never sacrificed an hour or a luxury, or social prestige.

If you were fortunate enough to find this young man in one of his few leisure moments, you might, with difficulty, discover, that he had graduated from the Shanghai Baptist College, and later studied for four years at Chicago and Rochester Seminary, from which he graduated about a year ago. Equipped with such an education, one might expect to find him in one of the fine pulpits of the city, but the opportunity which opened for him when he returned from abroad was with this little flock of two score members, in rented quarters, and he did not hesitate.

"Every Chinese believes that moral character is the only foundation of society or the state" says Mr. Wu, "but I go further and believe that only as men find a strength outside themselves can they have the higher character, and that power comes only from God." For this reason Mr. Wu is moving by day among his flock, and by night promoting the church night school which in its first term has enrolled 46 students. In this way he aims at an institutional church which shall have influence in every corner of his community, and in which young men can find satisfaction for their normal desires in social and religious life.

His vision is not, however, limited to his own little place of work. Though his first financial campaign began recently, he accepted the position of executive secretary for the Committee arranging the Sunday School Reception to the World Convention delegates, and this is taking many hours of hard work. No small measure of the success expected will be due his personal efforts. Meantime his campaign has ended successfully with the amount oversubscribed.

HARVARD, PRINCETON AND YALE TEAMS START WELL; LEHIGH OUTGAMES W. VA.

Navy And Colgate "Lose Face" In Games With North Carolina And Susquehanna—Columbia Needs Pepper-Box—N.Y.U. Going Strong

For the first time in some years, says the New York World of October 6th, the alleged and so-called "Big Three" of intercollegiate football appear to be in a fair way to justify that self-appointed and rather imposing title.

Harvard, Yale and Princeton would seem to be in for a harvest year, unless the latent power discernible in Saturday's exhibitions is just so much early season hokum.

Yale and Harvard won from Carnegie Tech and Maine respectively by impressive scores; Princeton knocked off Swarthmore—a good "little" team that will be heard from at no distant date—by a margin of two touchdowns.

Yale and Princeton have found instant favor, the former because of a powerful running attack built around Kempton and Aldrich; the latter because it appears to have the same fighting combination of last year plus experience. Lourie and Murrey are fine open field runners and past masters at either end of a forward pass; Wittmer is a great defensive back, and the line from tackle to tackle stands up so well that the secondary defense, thanks to Wittmer, is spread in two layers.

TRIAL OF SYSTEM

Whether Roper can get away with this system in the games to come is another matter. True, "Mike" Callahan and Stanley Keck are great defensive units, and Frank Rutan, ex-freshman tackle, appears to have everything, but the ends are none too good and Thomas and Dickenson, the guards, are a trifle short on experience.

All of which would seem to indicate that Roper's spread formation of backfield defense will not hold water under the sustained pounding of a hard running offense.

MURPHY PRAISED

As for the Yale outfit, it is the sense of the meeting that Tad Jones would do well to place Johnny Kempton at a halfback position without further delay and leave the quarterback position to Thorne Murphy and his own devices.

Murphy's work on Saturday indicated that he can outgeneral Kempton, man for man, any time he starts and furthermore, he seems to possess that all-important knack of driving his team to the ultimate. The shift would also react to Kempton's benefit in leaving him foot loose and fancy free in the matter of conducting his running game—and from the more advantageous position of rear halfback.

Harvard, of course, proved essentially nothing in overcoming Maine. The tip is out that the Crimson, lacking a Brickley, Mahan or Casey, around whom to center an attack or a "threat" of the same, will not prevail as of yore. But Harvard always turns out a well coached team, fundamentally correcting every thought, word and deed.

NAVY BEATEN

The Navy's defeat by North Carolina and Colgates scoreless tie with Susquehanna were the only diverting circumstances peculiar to the week end. If anything, the Colgate affair is more significant in that the Marcon was turned loose on a weak small college team while the Middies, sans a few stars, are just good enough to come back and live down the stigma of that one reverse.

LEHIGH CONRAGEOUS

According to reliable advices, Lehigh, outplayed to whisper by West Virginia, was still able to get away with a tie score because it refused to take a beating. This, however, is only typical of Keadys teams from year to year. In all, West Virginia gained fifteen first downs from scrimmage to Lehigh's four.

COLUMBIA IS WEAK

Unless "Buck" O'Neill resorts to a species of parlor magic in the meantime Columbia will not go far enough in the subsequent few days to beat New York University on Saturday. Columbia had power against Trinity but appeared to lack not only finesse but inclination in its application.

On the other hand, N. Y. U. is well around in the Gargan system by this time, has a fine running back in Weinheimer and a roving center, second to few, in Archie Brinn. What else it may have, we are not in a position to say, but we will chance the opinion that it will be ample for Columbia's needs.

BOLTON SOCCER TEAM IS AGAIN IN TOP CLASS

Success Against Aston Villa Reminds British Writer Of Other Days

By J. A. McWEENEY

One of the football sensations of the season so far was the defeat of Aston Villa by Bolton Wanderers by 5 goals to 0. Such a performance by the Wanderers conjures up many memories of great teams that have disappointed before the season ends.

In many seasons the Wanderers have had the men capable of carrying them into the realms of distinction, and yet how frequently they have taken the wrong turning. In their long career they have never succeeded in winning the Cup.

On two occasions they were near to success, coming to grief at the very last obstacle. On form they ought to have beaten Notts County in the Final in 1894, but they were ignominiously defeated by 4 goals to 1.

Manchester City thwarted them in the final of 1904. Chelsea beat them in the first round last season, and yet the Wanderers had a very good side indeed.

DERBY DECEPTIVE

Another club, which too often has flattered only to deceive, is Derby County. Having produced possibly the finest inside forward the game has known, Stephen Bloomer, as also the greatest goalkeeper of his day, Jack Robinson, and such geniuses of the football field as the brothers Goodall, the late Ben Warren, J. D. Cox, H. Maskrey, J. Fryer, E. Scattergood and F. Buckley, it seems strange that they should so constantly have fallen short of greatness.

Derby County has ever been productive of class goalkeepers since you will observe that Robinson, Maskrey, Fryer and Scattergood have worn the club's colors. Search the records, and what do you find? Not on a single occasion have they ever attained First League championship. In 1896 they reached second position, and in 1894 and 1897 they got third place, but that was nearly a quarter of a century ago.

ALMOST NOT QUITE

It is, however, when you examine their Cup record that you realise how frequently they got nearly there, but not quite. In their long career they have never been able to win the elusive honor. Three times did they fight their way into the Final, and on all three occasions they were looked upon as likely winners.

When it came to the tug-of-war they invariably crumpled up. Nottingham Forest beat them 3-1; Sheffield United knocked them out with a score of 4-1, while Bury created a record against them by defeating them by six clear goals.

EXASPERATING NEWCASTLE

Another club which, judged by its records, has been exasperatingly disappointing is Newcastle United. True they won the Cup in 1910, after two keen struggles with Barnsley, but at times when they were wealthy in playing talent, and were tipped as certainties, they had the nasty habit of crumbling up in the last round. On four other occasions they got to the Final, only to go down before the Villa, Everton, Wolverhampton Wanderers, and Bradford City.

Paymaster Cope, U.S.N., Again Makes High Score In Championship Shoot

Annexes 1920 Title In 45-Caliber Revolver And Pistol Tournament; Secretary Freeman Is Second—Good Scores Made By First Ten Competitors

The second annual Shanghai .45 cal revolver and pistol championship competition for 1920, which was open to allcomers, closed November 1. The competition was a success and will be an annual event.

The gold medal was won by Paymaster E. H. Cope U.S.N., who is one of the recognised revolver shots of America, having won several States championship competitions, connected with the Revolver Association of America.

The winner is transferred to the .45 cal. championship class in future .45 cal. competitions, which will give everyone an equal chance of becoming the champion for the year.

Conditions of the competition were 10 shots at 15 yards, 10 shots at 20 yards and 10 shots at 25 yards—off-hand, no rest. Time limit, one hour. Club's standard targets, with 2 inch inner and 4 inch outer bulls-eye (inner bull counts 10 and outer bull counts 9 points) were used. Highest possible score 300.

MANY INTERESTING GAMES ON LOCAL FIELDS PLANNED FOR THE COMING SATURDAY

Nanking To Play St. John's—St. Xavier II. Clashes With Customs—Rangers Will Oppose Shanghai College—Jewish Club Meets Waterworks Team At Hongkew Park

By Dudley Burrows

Shanghai should witness some excellent soccer football on Saturday next, a number of good tight struggles being on schedule for settlement on local grounds. The season is now fairly well advanced and, from the results of Saturday's struggles, a good deduction may be made as to the probable "Bests" of the year.

Of importance, since one of the teams journeys from up-country for the struggle, is the game scheduled between St. John's and Nanking, at St. John's. Nanking lost to Soochow last week, but is said to have bolstered up its offence and to be ready for a real top-hole match.

There will be two games at Hongkew Park. At 2:30 the St. Xavier second eleven will tangle with the Customs, which recently lost to Futan by a score of 3-0. Fifteen minutes afterwards, in another section of the park, the Shanghai Waterworks club will meet the Jewish Recreation club. These should be good games to watch.

Shanghai College will meet The Rangers, on the College grounds, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. The Rangers recently reorganised for the season, electing Mr. T. L. Rawsthorne to be captain; Mr. E. T. Nash to be vice-captain; Mr. W. H. Taylor to be secretary-treasurer; and the Messrs. N. S. Jacobs, J. B. Brown and G. Day to compose the football committee.

The line-up of the Jewish Recreation Club, against the Waterworks eleven, will be as follows: Messrs. Berry (Captain), Cooper (vice-captain), Villas, Williams, Greene, Myhre, Martinez, Alarakia, Pintos, Senna and Hansen. Reserves: Messrs. Thompson, Tanaka and Leon.

The line-ups for the St. Xavier's-Customs game are as follows:

St. Xavier II.—L. Leitao, L. Horeastein, I. Silva, H. Albaquerque, W. Favacho, A. Segueira, H. Collaco, J. Macdonald, J. Tordy (Capt.), T. Aldeguer, I. Favacho. Reserves, F. Kellner, J. Lima.

Customs.—Steventon, Nash, Davies, Barge, Crisp, Barnes, Morras, Dallaw, Barnes, Ogden, Stacey. Reserves, Martin, Parsons.

Comiskey Rewards His Honest Players

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, today sent checks for $1,500 each to the ten members of last year's team not involved in the baseball scandal. The ten were Ray Schalk, Byrd Lynn, Urban Faber, Dick Kerr, R. H. Wilkinson, Eddie Collins, John Collins, H. McClellan, Harry Leibold and E. Murphy. In a letter to each Comiskey said:

"As one of the honest ball players of the Chicago White Sox of 1919 I feel that you are deprived of the World's Series receipts through no fault of yours.

"I do not intend that you, as an honest ball player, should be penalised for your honesty or by reason of the dishonesty of others, and therefore take pleasure in handing you $1,500, being the difference between the winner's and the loser's share."

EXPERT GIVES LATEST "DOPE" ON RACE PONIES

Of the older ponies now in training for the races next week the following should qualify for the Champions: The Oriole (hot favorite), The Curlew, The Heron, Silver Streak, Comedy King, Allied King, Colinton, Triumph, Churchill, Mighty King and Old Bill.

Of the Leger ponies the performances of these ponies should be followed: The Curlew, Hongkong Chief, Allied King, Struma, Djemna, Churchill, King's Cross and Exchequer Bill, though on his performances and condition The Curlew should win easily. Should the course be heavy it is very possible that a big pony with a low weight will win.

Of the Griffins the following are the best: Bantry Bay, Strathfarrar, Doiran, Safety Light, Kahala, The Slave, and should be watched throughout the race meeting.

FIRE IN CHAPEI GIVES BRIGADES HARD TUSSLE

Blaze Sweeps Through Two Terraces Of Two-Story Chinese Dwellings

OTHERS DAMAGED

Settlement Department Aids Chinese At North Szechuen Road Extension

Two terraces of Chinese dwellings, all of two stories, were gutted, and about a dozen one-story buildings and the large residence of Mr. Bau of the Commercial Press were damaged yesterday when fire broke out in Chapei at the North Szechuen Road Extension shortly before noon.

Both the International Settlement and Chapei Fire Brigades made a three hour fight before the conflagration was under control.

The Settlement Department received a call at 11:18. The Hongkew bell tower reported a cloud of smoke arising to the west of North Szechuen Road Extension. The Hongkew division responded and found the outbreak in Chapei. A large block of houses was in flames.

ASK FOR HELP

An offer of assistance was made to the Chapei firemen but as not accepted at the time.

The fire made such progress that the Chapei brigade finally asked for help. The Hongkew and Central Divisions assisted. The water pressure was low and the firemen worked under great odds. With the shortage of water, only small jets could be used and good deal of cutting and pulling down had to be done.

After a strenous battle, the flames were surrounded and at 2 o'clock the Shanghai divisions returned to the Settlement. The Hongkew Pump was left to Assist the Chapei Brigade.

FIRE AT GAS WORKS

A small fire in the compressor house of the Gas Works yesterday morning caused slight damage, the underside of the roof above one of the compressors being burned in places.

The gas company staff under the direction of Mr. Hardy, and the S.F.B. Central division soon played several jets over the room, which was difficult to enter. The main gas valve had to be shut in order to extinguish the fire.

CHINESE BOY INJURED

A Chinese boy, 16 years old, was burned about the face and hands at a small fire in North Honan Road yesterday afternoon. He was also suffering from bruises and was taken to the hospital. The fire damage was slight. The outbreak was caused by the upsetting of a kerosene lamp. The alarm was received at 4:42 and Hongkew Division responded.

FOOD FROM MANILA NEARS FAMINE AREA

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, November 4.—Food to relieve the famine sufferers that was brought to Tientsin from Manila on the United States Transport Merritt, commanded by Major Noble Wiley, is now being carried up the Grand Canal on barges with the hope that it will reach the southern edge of the Chihli famine area before freezing weather starts.

The American transport brought 250 tons of food and a hundred tons of clothing which was delivered to the Tientsin International Famine Relief Society.

TIENTSIN WORKER HERE

A reception was given yesterday by the Association for Industrial and Labor Developments in honor of Mr. Shen Tso-wu who returned from the North China famine-stricken district Wednesday after visiting a large number of cities on behalf of the Shanghai Merchants' Famine Relief Association. Mr. Yang Tcheng, former Special Envoy of Foreign Affairs, presided.

Mr. Shen showed samples of the "food" which were being distributed to the refugees and gave a pathetic picture of the sufferings of the people in these districts.

Mr. Yang emphasized the importance of doing relief work scientifically and advocated the employment of the refugees for constructive purposes, pointing out the danger of merely giving them food, causing idleness and even unlawfulness.

London, November 1.—The "mystery man," arrested recently, who was believed to be a Bolshevik spy acting as a go-between between the revolutionaries in Great Britain and Russia, was sentenced at Bow-Street Police Court today to six months' hard labor, and ordered to be deported. It is stated that he is a Finn named Erki Veltheim.

Rev. George Field Fitch Is Fifty Years In China

Many Attend Reception; Pioneer Shanghai American Mission Worker Recalls Early Days Here

With scores of friends, both foreign and Chinese, calling in to proffer congratulations and extend the heartiest of good wishes, the Rev. George Field Fitch, one of Shanghai's pioneer American residents, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his arrival in China yesterday afternoon when a reception was held at the home of his son, Mr. George A. Fitch, 50 Dixwell Road.

From 4:30 until 7 p.m. there was a constant stream of callers at the Fitch home, testifying eloquently to the esteem in which Dr. Fitch and his work are held by a host of friends in all walks of life here. Miss Alice Fitch and Mr. George Fitch received the guests as they arrived and dainty refreshments were served.

Dr. Fitch landed in Shanghai on November 5, 1870, finding a totally different place, as he remarked reminiscently yesterday, to the modern city which banks the Whangpoo today, and a totally different attitude on the part of the Chinese toward the foreigner.

The year Dr. Fitch arrived, coming under the auspices of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, was the year of the Tientsin Massacre, and there was a distinct feeling of animosity toward the Westerner here. His friends at home, Dr. Fitch remarked with a twinkling eye, were very much disturbed, and, as a matter of fact, there seemed grounds for uneasiness when he landed, for rumors were rife that the foreigners were to be driven out of the country and notices to this effect were even posted about the cities. Many times, Dr. Fitch said, when there was any unusual noise outside the house at night, Mrs. Fitch would awaken with the belief that the Chinese had started to carry out their threats.

EARLY SOOCHOW RESIDENT

Dr. Fitch was in Shanghai for two years studying the language after he arrived from the States and lived at the South Gate, where there was then but a tiny squalid village. He then went to Soochow, being one of the first foreigners living in that city, and after six months there returned to Shanghai for a time, then went back to Soochow for a period of ten years.

Living conditions in Shanghai in those days were vastly different than today, Dr. Fitch said. The cost of living was less amazing for one thing. Then one could buy the best beef for 8 cents a pound, and select any cut of the animal. There were no rickshas and the few carriages to be seen on the streets were two-wheeled traps of a by-gone style. There were few foreign style buildings and the limits of the Settlement were so restricted that Range Road, then the location of the rifle range, was way out in the country, and a waste of mud flats extended back of the Astor House—then a two-story frame building. The population of the International Settlement in those days totaled about 80,000, as against its 700,000 of today.

U.S. FLAG IN EVIDENCE

The American flag was more in evidence in the 70's than that of any other nation, Dr. Fitch remarked. Russell & Co., afterward bought out by the China Merchants' company, operated a large fleet of vessels on the river and along the coasts. The Pacific Mail Company boasted the only trans-Pacific steamship service and operated a monthly boat from Hongkong to San Francisco, making only one call at ther Eastern ports—Yokohama. The same company maintained a weekly service between Shanghai and Yokohama. Oliphant & Co. also maintained an American steamship service, their route being via the Cape, however.

Dr. Fitch came out to the East on the Pacific Mail steamer Japan, a side-wheel craft then regarded as palatial among steamers, making the trip from San Francisco to Yokohama in 24 days. He had travelled to San Francisco from the Eastern States over the then newly completed Transcontinental railway, when Omaha was an outpost village, with practically an unbroken wilderness of prairie and mountains between it and San Francisco.

Dr. Fitch went from Soochow to Ningpo, where he stayed for two years and a half, returning then to become superintendent of the Presbyterian Mission Press in 1888. He was long editor-in-chief of the Chinese Recorder and was active in literary work. He retired from active service with the Presbyterian Mission Press in 1914.

The greatest change he has noticed during his long stay in China, Dr. Fitch said yesterday, was that which has come over the Chinese young people in their outlook and attitude toward modern life, and in the attitude taken by the better class of Chinese citizens throughout the country toward foreigners and foreign ideas.

Government Is To Finance Exposition

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 1.—In the House of Commons today in moving the second reading of the British Empire exhibition guarantee bill, which authorises the Board of Trade to guarantee up to £100,000 any loss on the exhibition, Mr. Kellaway, Parliamentary Secretary for Overseas Trade, said that the Exhibition provided a great opportunity to demonstrate to the world the almost unlimited resources within the Empire.

He stated that the possibilities of British trade within the Empire not being sufficiently realised, the percentage of trade done with the Empire was steadily diminishing before the war, but since the Armistice the percentage had steadily increased, and that the exhibition provided an opportunity for increasing it still further. The Bill passed the second reading by 205 votes to 30.

INJECTING JAZZ INTO 1920 POLITICS

U. S. Managers Getting Votes By Enlisting The Aid Of Popular Comedy Stars

(Uncle Dudley in the Boston Post)

There is a whole category of stories which begin, "There were two men in a boat." It is a signal that the narrator is in a frivolous mood. The two men in this boat were straining their oars and muscles in an attempt to tow a becalmed yacht through Hull Gut against an outflowing tide.

After three failures, one turned to the other and said: "We're not getting anywhere."

"No," replied the other, plagiarising an ancient rejoinder, "but look at the fun we're having."

Many persons think the speed laws of progress are in no danger of being violated during the current presidential campaign, but there is no denying that the campaign has its amusing aspects.

INJECTING THE JAZZ

The American public recently was cordially invited to be present in spirit on Senator Harding's front porch. Those who danced physical attendance were Al Jolson, the blackface comedian, and a mixed company of seventy-five legitimate and "movie" actors and actresses.

These stars, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, submitted to the discomfort of a railroad journey in summer for your particular benefit.

A correspondent tells the whys and wherefores. The campaign committee rather thinks. So into it will be injected some "jazz"—a twentieth century substitute for the old torchlight procession.

The decision seems to be that the ingredient missing in the campaign is "jazz." Perhaps the idea is that, though "jazz" owes its reputation to the charm it exercises over the pedal extremities, it ultimately goes to the head.

BALL PLAYERS' APPROVAL

The plan of illuminating the road to the presidency by a galaxy of the country's popular entertainers has apparently made a common appeal to both Republican and Democratic managers. Soon after Governor Cox was nominated, a group of "big league" ball players organised and gave him the same cordial indorsement that they frequently give to certain brands of tobacco. ("Have used nothing else for ten years.")

Political managers are seldom lacking in shrewdness. Perhaps they have divined that there actually are thousands of voters for whom discussion of issues is wasted powder. To line them up? Capture the support of their favorite ball player or "movie" star.

No dearth of comic turns in this campaign vaudeville.

Cars Seized In Urga End Trip To Kalgan

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, Nov. 4.—Word was received here today that three of the Mongolian Trading Company's motor cars that were requisitioned by the Chinese officials of Urga have arrived at Kalgan bringing officials out of Mongolia. The chauffeurs reported that they left Urga on October 31 and encountered some fighting against bandits in the back country. They reported also that a number of Russian shops were looted in Urga by Chinese troops.

Britons Are Planning Impressive Ceremonies For Armistice Day Here

Religious services, a dinner, concert and dance will form a program for the observance of Armistice Day, next Thursday, November 11. The religious services will be held at Holy Trinity Cathedral under the auspices of the United War Services Association and the evening program will be under the joint arrangements of that organisation and the French veterans' association—the Union des Anciens Combattant de la Grand Guerre.

The church services, which will be of a simple nature, will begin at 10:45 a.m., this hour having been fixed so that the two minutes' silence at 11 o'clock may be observed, in accordance with the wish of King George. All members of the Association and their families are urged to attend the commemoration service, which will take as well the form of a memorial to the Shanghai dead, the Roll of Honor being printed on the back of the prayer leaflets.

SAILORS TO PARADE

There will be a landing party from the British warships in port which will parade to the cathedral. Wearing of uniform by members of the Association is optional.

The dinner will be held at 7:30 p.m., at the French Club, which has been offered for the occasion. Only members of the two organisations will attend this feature, but following the dinner there will be a concert and dance in which members' wives and relatives will participate. The concert will be a short one, of seven or eight items, and the floor will then be cleared for dancing.

The United Services Association numbers some 500 members here and the French organisation about 80 and it is expected that the capacity of the Club will be taxed by the attendance.

FRANCE TAKES ACTION

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 3.—The French cabinet decided on Tuesday to lay before Parliament, upon its assembling on November 8, a bill authorising the transfer to the Pantheon on November 11 of the remains of an unknown soldier.

London, November 1.—Brigadier-General Sir Douglas Dawson, Comptroller in the Lord Chamberlain's Department, in a letter to the press with reference to a suggestion that a sailor should be buried side-by-side with the soldier in Westminster Abbey on Armistice Day, points out that the body to be carried to the grave will be of an "unknown warrior" symbolising the whole of the forces of the Empire, and not of the Army alone.

PREMIER DOES HIS PART

London, November 1.—In the House of Commons today, in reply to Sir R. B. Chadwick, Mr. Lloyd George said that it was hoped that as far as possible throughout the Empire, at 11 o'clock on the morning of Armistice Day, there would be a "two minutes' silence" and a complete suspension of normal business, works and locomotion. Replying to another question, the Premier stated that he was of the opinion that the stopping of the engines of motor cars was very desirable.

London, November 1.—The House of Commons by loud cheers today endorsed the suggestion of Major C. G. C. Hamilton that the members should surrender their rights to reserved seats in Westminster Abbey and near the Cenotaph, on the occasion of the burial of the "unknown warrior," in favor of the bereaved wives and mothers of those who had fallen in the war. The Premier promised that the Government would make arrangements accordingly.

New Electoral Laws Are Being Framed For Mesopotamians

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 2.—In the House of Commons today, replying to a question by Sir Donald Maclean (Peebles) in regard to Sir Percy Cox's mission to Mesopotamia, Mr. Bonar Law made a lengthy statement, in which he stated that there was no further cause for serious anxiety in regard to the situation. The Mesopotamia Committee was, he said, framing electoral laws, a draft of which would be ready shortly. A Council of State, representing all parts of the country, had been established for the administration of the country.

Health, Beauty And The Home

The Useful Tomato

By Mrs. Christine Frederick,
The Distinguished Authority on Household Efficiency.

It seems difficult to believe that only a few years ago tomatoes were unused for food and were regarded as poison and only set upon the mantel shelf as decorations. In those days they were called "love-apples." Since they belong to the deadly night shade family no one thought they were fit to be eaten, and so they were not numbered either among the fruits or vegetables of our grandmothers' day.

I certainly cannot keep house without tomatoes. I believe I could spare every other vegetable or fruit (save onions) rather than these luscious, rosy globes which are now in their season and which form the basis of so many appetizing, healthful dishes.

Tomatoes may be classed as a sub-acid fruit, for, in addition to their large percentage of water, they contain valuable mineral salts and acids which clean and refresh the blood. Mother Nature was wise, for the tomatoes ripen at possibly the hottest period of the Summer. So here is a fruit which can be eaten raw and which is full of refreshing juices and salts which cool the blood during these sultry days. Tomatoes may be regarded as a Summer tonic or medicine, and there is little danger of their being eaten too freely at this season.

Like every other fruit or vegetable, the tomato is at its best when eaten perfectly ripe and raw. It needs no cooking to enhance its flavor, and its rich, fleshy meat is so full of zest that it needs only a pinch of salt to accompany it. However, we may become tired even of perfection, and it is wise to vary the raw tomato occasionally with dressings and other disguises.

I suppose there are some five hundred salads in which tomatoes play an important part. Scalded whole and with the skin removed they may have cavities scooped in them and filled with chopped cabbage, celery, cucumbers, radishes and other mixtures of infinite variety. Combined with dressings, either of the simple French type or a mayonnaise, they approach a dish fit for the gods. In every case the tomato should be chilled thoroughly after scalding and before slicing or cutting into decorative shapes.

The tomato has possibilities when [illegible] every house[illegible] How many fry tomatoes when they are in their prime? I cannot think of a more heavenly breakfast dish than tomatoes fried and served piping hot with a cream sauce on thin toast.

Select tomatoes that are not too ripe, slice thickly, dust slightly with flour or the very finest rolled bread crumbs and fry in a hot skillet, being careful in turning. Remove from skillet to very hot platter and then make sauce in skillet, rubbing a tablespoonful of flour into the remaining fat, adding top or rich milk. Season with a few drops of Worcestershire sauce, add a tablespoon of grated cheese if you prefer and a little chopped ham if it is handy. Such a dish with plenty of good bread will be a satisfactory meal on a hot weather evening and will make your meat bill lower.

Another good way is to scoop out the centre of very small tomatoes, place on a buttered baking dish, season the centres with salt and pepper and then drop an egg into each. Place under the gas broiler for a few moments and serve at once. This may be varied by adding some kind of chopped meat to the tomato, using toast, etc.

I have a few special dishes of my own which I treat to very special friends. One is called Egg Plant a l'Opera, but it really has as much tomato as egg plant. It is a divine dish for this season and another one which helps beat the H. C. of L.

To make it, have on hand a medium, perfectly ripe eggplant, several ripe tomatoes, finely crushed crumbs, grated cheese, salt, pepper and some frying oil. Use two skillets and fry medium slices of tomato and eggplant separately, both dusted with crumbs. Have a buttered casserole ready and fill first with fried eggplant, then the tomato slices, sprinkling cheese between them. Fill with alternate layers until the dish is full, using crumbs on the top and having seasoned each layer in the process. Bake about ten minutes in a hot oven and serve at once with crackers. Again, such a hearty dish of vegetable origin, eaten with bread and accompanied by a cool drink, would be a complete meal even for a hearty person on a hot evening. Try it, my readers!

Owing to their watery nature, tomatoes had best be combined with foods which are starchy or solid in bulk. That is why tomatoes go so well with macaroni, rice, spaghetti and other foods of the bread nature. It would be interesting to go to a local library and ask for a foreign cook book, particularly Italian or Spanish, and hunt up some recipes using tomatoes with rice and such food. There are hosts of these dishes which are delicious and which the people of other countries have far more frequently than we.

It will be an economy for the housewife to can her own tomatoes if she is in the centre of a cheap and plentiful supply. They are the easiest of anything to put up, and a well-filled quart jar of tomatoes will be found of heavier pack than the average commercial can.

In canning tomatoes use no water in the jar but pack down each whole tomato with a wooden spoon, add one teaspoonful of salt to each jar and sterilize. They form their own juice in canning. It is a good plan to put up some tomatoes specially for Winter salads. Use only very small, solid and not too ripe tomatoes. Do nothing but wash them carefully, remove the blossom or stem if any, and carefully pack into the jar. I have done up such small tomatoes several years with great success and it is delightful to be able to open such a jar in the middle of Winter and find such a fresh Summer fruit to use for making an attractive salad.

For Your Eyes

By Lina Cavalieri,
The Most Famous Living Beauty.

YOU cannot change the color of your eyes, but you can accentuate their color by taking special care of your eyebrows and eyelashes, so that they will grow longer and thicker and lend their shadows to the eyes.

A simple precaution to take is to brush them every night and morning with an eyebrow brush to keep them free from dust. The brush may be dipped into lanolin at night. This will stimulate their growth wonderfully and there will be plenty of time for the lanolin to be absorbed by the skin during the night.

Since I advise very decidedly against hair dyes, I cannot conscientiously advocate dyeing the eyebrows and eyelashes. The best thing I know is to massage lanolin into the eyebrows and touch the edges of the eyelids with the same, taking particular care that none of it get into the eye itself. This is the best way to keep the lids properly nourished. As the new hair comes in, it may be a trifle darker. This is the only experiment I advise.

Eyebrows that look uneven and "scraggly" should be treated every night with an eyebrow brush dipped in this mixture: Olive oil, 1 ounce; tincture of cantharides, ½ dram; oil of nutmeg, ¼ ounce; oil of rosemary, ¼ ounce.

If by any accident the lids have become granular, as may have chanced to be the result of excessive golf or excessive automobiling or tennis playing, the wholesome girl will not permit this disorder to grow. She knows that rest is to some extent corrective of the evil. If this does not quickly remove it I advise seeing a physician at once. I cannot conscientiously recommend any lotion for a disorder so serious and disfiguring, because I consider that a physician's advice is absolutely necessary.

For heavy, flabby, soft eyelids, which will wrinkle early into a prematurely aged appearance, the wholesome girl seeks first the extra sleep and rest that are the greatest tissue repairers. To proffer nature gentle assistance, she may resort to this ointment: Fresh lard, 150 grains; sulphate of potash and aluminum, 25 grains; tannin, 10 grains; borax, 20 grains.

If her eyes be inflamed and the extra amount of rest does not banish the unlovely condition, she may supplement the rest with this, applied, from three to five drops, with an eye-dropper: Distilled water, 50 grams; quince seed mucilage, 5 grams; water of cherry laurel, 3 grams; borax, ½ gram. This is recommended to be used with three times the quantity of water.

When awakening in the morning, if the wholesome girl, who is also an intelligent girl, finds her eyelashes are encrusted by secretions from the eyes, she will first soften these encrustations by rosewater, if that is available. If not, use warm, strong salt water, or equal parts of witch hazel and water.

The easiest way to keep the eyes cool and clean is by washing them morning and evening in an eye-cup filled with a mild solution of boracic acid to a pint of water. Pour the boiling water over the acid and strain it.

A red spot on the white of the eye is a sign of inflammation. It may indicate strain of the eye or a possible local irritation of some sort. First, remove the strain. Give the eyes all the rest you can. Sleep even more than usual, no matter how long your hours may be. Give up all reading and sewing for a time. Take a midday nap, if possible. If not, close the eyes as often as circumstances will permit for a few seconds at a time. Keep them closed while on a train.

Study always how to get the best light upon your task, whatever it may be. Avoid the direct light upon the eye. Bathe the eyes often with an eyecup in a mixture of boric acid, 1 ounce; rosewater, 6 ounces.

Keep cool bandages of cold tea-leaves or finely cracked ice on the eyes. Rest, rest the eyes. If a few weeks of this care does not clear the spot from the eye, then I would advise you to consult an oculist, for the trouble may be a deep seated one.

fullest extent the Treaty rights of British subjects residing and doing business in China and of resisting every encroachment upon those rights. It further urges upon H. M. Government the absolute necessity of arriving at a satisfactory understanding with the Chinese Government as to the future administration of those areas on such terms as will ensure that the interests of British property-owners and residents shall be in no way prejudiced and the peace and good order of the other Concessions fully safeguarded."

DISORDER IN CHINA

"That this conference views with grave alarm the state of unrest and lawlessness prevailing in almost every Province in China and the prevalence of unchecked piracy and brigandage in which undisciplined troops are frequently the worst offenders. It protests against the utter failure of the Chinese authorities to deal effectively with this deplorable situation and urges H. M. Government to use its utmost endeavors to bring home to the Chinese Government the inevitable effect of such persistent neglect of duty on the trade and prosperity of the country and that in the meantime every endeavor be made to combine with other foreign Powers equally interested in arranging a comprehensive scheme whereby the evil may be mitigated."

OPIUM AND MORPHIA

"That this conference welcomes the intention of H. M. Government, as evidenced by the Dangerous Drugs Act of 1920, to control the traffic in opium and its derivatives, but fears that these efforts will to a great extent be nullified unless the Chinese Government and the Foreign Powers are prepared to co-operate effectively in preventing the cultivation, import or sale of these drugs in any part of the country."

CROWN LEASES

"That this conference deplores the prolonged delay in arriving at a satisfactory decision regarding the extension of Crown leases in the British Concessions at Canton, Hankow and Tientsin, which is seriously affecting British trade interests, and urges H. M.'s Government to effect an early settlement of this important question and further that the terms of this resolution be communicated by cable to H. M. Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs."

THE FAMINE

"That this conference expresses its deep sympathy with the Chinese people in the sufferings occasioned by the famine now afflicting so large an area of North China."

GREAT INCREASE IN TRADE WITH GERMANY SHOWN

United Kingdom Purchases £17,000,000 Goods From Former Foes

London, November 2.—It is officially stated that the United Kingdom imported from Germany in the first nine months of 1920 £17,000,000 worth of goods, wholly or mainly manufactured. The Government is considering the question of taking action with regard to the bearing of the state of exchange on the competition of German goods in the British market.

RECOVERY RAPID

Washington, November 1.—The Federal Reserve Board's monthly review of business conditions declares that the recovery from war and post-war conditions is "proceeding apace." It states that, although readjustment has been marked by uncertainty and some suspension, activity will come. The situation as a whole shows much inherent strength and ability to attain a position of relative stability through orderly transactions. Price revisions in the textile lines and other branches of the wearing apparel industry, as well as in numerous staple commodities, are the outstanding elements of the situation during the past month.

First Photo Of K. Of C. Statue Of Lafayette Presented To France

The big bronze statuue of Lafayette presented to France by the Knights of Columbus en route to the City of Metz for the unveiling by Marshal Foch. The ceremony took place on August 21. The statue, which weighed close to three tons, was shipped in one of the K. of C. auto trucks which served at A. E. F. during the war. The statue is the work of Paul Bartlett, noted American sculptor, and was made in New York.

Japanese Sent Chinese Against Hungchun, Is Report Of Foreigner

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, November 2.—A foreigner well acquainted with the Hungchun district and who states that he was in Hungchun city at the time of the last raid and the sacking of the city which brought about the Japanese occupation of the entire Chientao and Possiet Bay districts, has given the following story to the correspondent of THE CHINA PRESS. The story, as was remarked by one person hearing it, is perhaps better fitted for the pict of a photo-drama than a sober newspaper report, but we reproduce it for the sake of its interest rather than its news value. The drama, as the visitor from Hungchun tells it, is probably too swift and neatly worked out to be true to mere commonplace fact; but reports from various independent sources indicate that, whatever form it took, the Japanese incentive toward bringing the situation to a crisis with the motive of affording a pretext for getting at the Koreans in the Chinese border district who were arming and drilling for effectiveness in the revolutionary cause, was a fact.

EQUIPPED BY JAPANESE

The story runs: "The bandit force which attacked Hungchun was Chinese in personnel, but was trained, equipped and financed by the Japanese. The headquarters of this particular force of Japanese employed bandits was Nikolsk (in Russian territory) and the band has been employed for some time raiding Korean villages in northeastern Manchuria without any marked success because the Korean colonists were forewarned and in every conflict defended themselves vigorously. To put stamina into the bandits, Japanese troops accompanied this particular party on at least two raids. On one occasion the band was accompanied by 50 Japanese soldiers and five officers. In the attack upon Hungchun there is no definite evidence that there were Japanese among the bandits, the testimony of witnesses varying.

CHINESE WARNED

"A few days before the attack the Chinese received written warning from the band of an impending attack. This was given with the purpose of throwing the Chinese authorities into the arms of the Japanese soldiery and it had the desired effect, for the officer of the local Chinese garrison called on the Japanese for support. A small Japanese detachment responded to the call and plans were laid for a defence. One gate was finally given to the Japanese to defend and one to the Chinese.

"At the moment of attack the situation became complicated for the Japanese-employed bandits upon nearing the city, encountered a large party of genuine Hunghutse Manchurian raiders, who had no interest in furthering Japan's projects, but who were by coincidence intent upon looting Hungchun. After considerable parleying, it was arranged among them that the Japanese agents were to attack the gate defended by the Japanese while the freebooters assaulted the gate defended by the Chinese. The storming of the gates was undertaken simultaneously. At the Japanese gate a few shots were fired, after which the Japanese soldiery permitted their bandit allies to enter without further resistence.

"The Chinese bandits were beaten off at the other gate by the Chinese soldiery until it became known to them that the robbers who had entered the other gate were looting the city and had everything under their control. The defense was then abandoned.

FIGHT JAPANESE

"After the looting of the city and the assault upon the Japanese consulate, in which no one was killed, although the Japanese soldiery had retired thither, the two bands of bandits again came together and by some arrangement agreed to go on their way as one party abandoning the Japanese cause and making it lively for any Japanese whom they might meet. When Japanese troops were rushed in from the Huining garrison in Korea the combined force of bandits encountered them and put up a vigorous fight. There were many casualties on both sides and this skirmish furnished the Japanese with all the excuse they wanted to occupy the whole Chientao district and to deal characteristically with the Korean villages. Three of the largest Korean schools were burned and a system of military police was installed throughout the district on the basis of four soldiers to every thirty Korean families."

Bombs Discovered In Portland's Downtown Business District

Portland, Oregon, November 4.—Three bombs containing high explosives were found in the doorway of the building adjoining the First National Bank here. No details are given.

FIREMEN KILLED

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 1.—Three firemen were killed and six injured in a fire caused by a gas explosion in a large rubber warehouse at Wapping. The damage is estimated at over £120,000.

Coal Market

In their report dated November 4, Messrs. Wheelock and Co. write as follows:

Japan Coal.—There has been no new business done on this market since last writing but many inquiries have been received from local dealers. Until next year's supplies are known it is impossible to give any indication as to prices, which are likely to be seriously effected by the unfavorable rate of exchange.

Fushun Coal.—No new business has been done since last writing but a large export business is expected for next year, the normal output from the mines being assured.

Kaiping Coal.—Inquiries on a large scale continue to come from Europe, America and the Near East. Allotments for 1921 are however, being made in the first instance to local and regular consumers and next years prices will be in circulation during the next ten days.

Hongkong Market

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor write as follows in their report dated October 29:

There has been rather more tone to our market during the past week, owing no doubt partially to the more hopeful outlook as regards the coal strike, and also to a slightly lower exchange.

The Rubber market is unchanged with nothing doing.

In Shanghai the market shows an inclination to improve, buyers prevailing in most Cotton stocks—weak holders apparently having disappeared.

The chief alterations from last week are:

Hongkong Banks.—Have risen to $655, and a few shares have been done at this price. In London Banks have risen to £118.

Hongkong Lands: Are wanted at $123, with no shares offering.

Hotels.—Are nominal at $160.

Wharves.—After sales at $89¼ are in good demand at $90 with few if any sellers.

Hongkong Docks.—Some changed hands as low as $145, but there are now buyers at $147 with possible sellers at $148.

Deferred Indos.—Have buyers at $180.

Cements.—Have again had an upward spurt and close with buyers at $9.30 for cash and $9.50 for December.

Hongkong Trams.—Are firm with buyers at $7¼.

London Quotations of the 27th inst.—Show a considerable advance over last week owing, no doubt, to the expected settlement of the coal strike. Shells £7. 10. 0., Anglo Egyptians "B" £3. 16. 3. Deferred Indos £34. 10. 0. and Hongkong Banks, London Register, £118. All middle prices.

Oil Shares.—Our London correspondent wires us that the Shell market is very active owing to the Mexican Eagle Oil Company having proved the entirely new district of Zacamixtle—the first well yielding 75,000 barrels of Oil per day.

Exchange.—The demand selling rate on London is 3/10⅝ and the T.T. selling rate on Shanghai is 72¾.

FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET

The week under review was quiet with no Bills offering and little or no demand for T.T. Taels T.T. on Shanghai hardened to 97⅛ Chinese market while Foreign Banks sold at 97¼ and 97¼. Dollars fell to 69 65—69.85 Chinese market, owing to no business doing and stock of dollars increasing. Interest 11 percent after being 5 percent. Changsha exchange: Nominal.

IMPORTS

There is very little change to report. If anything the market was inclined slightly towards the optimistic side, but the unfortunate big failure of a well known and long Established Piece Goods Hong will tend to make credit facilities more difficult and add another obstacle to trading.

EXPORTS

Conditions ruling both in Europe and America are such that we do not anticipate a recovery of the market for some little time. The coal strike in England and coming elections in America are each having their effect on business.

Freight Market

Messrs. Wheelock and Co. write as follows in their report dated November 4:

The situation in our Outward Freight markets is as follows:

To United Kingdom and Continent.—The slight improvement which we noted in our last issue came to an abrupt termination owing to the general disorganisation of trade resulting from the coal strike in Great Britain, and very little new business has been fixed during the last fortnight.

There are indications of a probable revival in the demand for seeds and cereals, provided the expected settlement of the strike takes place.

To United States via Pacific and via Panama and Suez.—This market is more lifeless than ever. Probably the impending Presidential election may have some bearing on the general dullness trade, but we do not anticipate any great improvement until such time as the large stocks of China produce held in America have been disposed of. As these stocks were imported at a very much higher rate of exchange than what exists at present it seriously effects the situation. Such being the case the berths are likely to remain over-supplied with tonnage for some considerable time.

Coastwise.—The position since last writing is practically unchanged. The demand for tonnage from the North is well maintained and may be expected to continue until the closing of the Northern Ports.

The latest reports from the South indicate that conditions are becoming more settled and we consider that a change for the better in the Yangtsze-Canton trade may be looked for in the near future.

Sungei Duri Estate Meeting

The tenth annual general meeting of the Sungei Duri Rubber Estate, Ltd. took place yesterday at the office of the secretaries and general managers, Messrs. A. R. Burkill and Sons, 2 Kiukiang Road.

Mr. Hugo Reiss, chairman, presided. The directors present were Messrs. F. J. Burrett and N. G. Maitland and Father Sallou. Mr. J. V. C. Davis acted as secretary. The number of shares represented was 9,080.

The secretary read the notice convening the meeting and the auditors' report.

The chairman then said: "The report and accounts having been in your hands for some time, I will follow the usual course and take them as read.

"The result of the year's working may be regarded as very satisfactory, the improvement at Selama Estate being especially noticeable. The crop there exceeded the estimate by 64,000 lbs., this improved yield resulting in a reduction in producing cost in spite of generally increased prices of estate supplies. The output at Sungei Duri Estate was short of the estimate and less than that for the previous year, this being attributable to certain labor difficulties and exceptional weather conditions during a part of the year. Costs are somewhat increased, the heavy loss on rice supplied to the labor force accounting for a considerable portion of this increase.

"The 'all-in' cost of the production of both estates was 10.17d. per lb. which will compare favorably with the results attained on any Estate in the country.

"Of the 75 acres which it was proposed to plant up at Selama, 68 acres have been felled of which 23 acres have been cleared. The completion of these extensions will be effected during the current year in addition to a further 12 acres necessary to round off the 1919-1920 clearings. The total planted area will then amount to 932 acres. Under present circumstances no further extensions are contemplated.

PROFIT OVER TAELS 57,000

The annual report contains very full information regarding conditions on the estates during the year and leaves very little for me to comment on. Estate matters generally have worked well and smoothly and the management is to be congratulated on the excellent progress made. The question of bark renewal is having the attention of the directors and a special visit to the estates is being made by an expert to report on conditions in this respect.

"The profit for the year amounted to Tls. 57,902.31 and as far as the result of the year's working is concerned the payment of a final dividend would be amply justified. Conditions during recent months have however become so unfavorable that the directors cannot recommend it, and they feel sure that the shareholders will agree with them that the present is no time to make any distribution of cash funds, which, should a further fall in the price of rubber take place, might be required for the upkeep of the properties. If an improvement takes place and the outlook for the future becomes clearer the Directors will give every consideration to the payment of an interim dividend for the current year.

"The Company has given its support to a scheme for the reduction of outputs by 25 percent up to the end of 1920 and it would appear probable that this reduction will be continued for at least a portion of the year 1921. Stocks in all centers are rapidly accumulating and unless and until they are brought down to reasonable amounts little relief from the present low price of rubber can be expected. The reduction on this Company's estates will be effected by alternate day tapping or resting certain areas as found suitable.

"If any Shareholders have any questions to ask, I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability."

RESOLUTIONS ARE PASSED

The following resolutions were then passed:

Proposed by Mr. Hugo Reiss and seconded by Mr. F. J. Burrett.—"That the report and accounts for the year ended June 30, 1920, as printed and circulated be passed."

Proposed by Mr. Hugo Reiss and seconded by Rev. Pere Sallou.—"That the following appropriation, of the balance at credit of profit and loss account be accepted.

Write off buildings and furniture	2,799.00
Write off rubber factory and stores	226.15

Proposed by Mr. N. G. Maitland and seconded by Mr. Hugo Reiss.—"That the appointment of Mr. E. A. Prince as a director of the company be confirmed."

Proposed by Mr. Rev. Pere Sallou and seconded by Mr. F. J. Burrett.—"That Mr Rugo Reiss be re-elected a director of the Company."

Proposed by Mr. S. R. Owen and seconded by Mr. Chun Man-tsze.—"That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews be re-elected Auditors to the Company at an annual remuneration of Tls. 300 for Shanghai and Penang."

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows in their Exchange Circular for week ending, November 3:

Exchange.—After slight fluctuations the London price of Silver at 52⅝d. is ⅜d. higher than last week. Our exchange market remained unchanged and quiet with little business passing, except Interbank operations, until yesterday when our local gold dealers caused a flutter by coming out as strong sellers of T.T. on London and went as high as 5s. 5½d. to dispose of some of their holdings. Our official rate for T.T. on London was moved one penny up to 5s. 3d. Today with a slight reaction in silver we remain at 5s. 3d. the market again quiet but quoted steady. It was expected among the gold dealers that the conclusion of the Presidential Election in the U.S.A. might improve the prospects of silver, but it is difficult to see how this can have any lasting effect, if any. Locally export business is still stagnant and with an improvement in the cotton and yarn market an improvement in deliveries and the import business generally might reasonably be expected.

Local stocks of Silver are reported as follows:

Sycee and Bar Silver Tls. 34,408,000 an increase of Tls. 408,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $27,930,000 unchanged.

Estimated value in Taels 54,788,000.

Stock of silver on November 5, 1919, Taels 30,467,000.

Sold: 1,231,167 lbs. (about 549 tons).

There was a comparatively small quantity of rubber on sale at the auctions this week, and as there appeared to be a number of "bears" with short sales still uncovered, bidding was quite keen.

Standard Ribbed Smoked Sheet was in good demand, rising to 51⅛ cents in the morning, showing a decline of 2 cents on the week. There were again several large buyers of Good F.A.Q. Sheet, the price for this grade being steady at about 1 cent under Standard parity. Off Quality Sheet found several good buyers, but only at a large discount.

Standard First Latex Crepe was again eagerly sought after, and 59⅛ cents was reached, or ⅛ cent decline since last auction. Bidding was very keen for this grade as Standard parcels are still fairly scarce and "bulls" unwilling to sell.

Off Color Latex and Mottled Crepe maintained their high values on account of the heavy premium on Standard Crepe.

Fine Brown and Good Browns were only on offer in small quantities, but sold to a rather uninterested market. Dark and Barky Crepes show a slight decline on last week's prices.

At the continuation this afternoon Standard Sheet dropped to 51 cents and Crepe to 59 cents.

Women And War

SOMEWHERE about 500 or 600 B.C., Solon was asked to write a new law code for his people. And he agreed to perform the task. He agreed with one proviso: He was to be permitted to escape from Athens before the new code was made public, and he was to be allowed to remain abroad for a decade.

And somewhere among the laws which he thereupon inflicted, you will find one which provides that when a woman goes out at night she shall wear at least three garments, shall ride in a chariot and shall be preceded by torch-bearers.

And inasmuch as something must happen before we make a law to stop it, we are enabled to learn from this law that the ladies of Athens had been going about at night without torch-bearers and chariots, and wearing somewhat less than three garments.

How many garments they did wear and what those garments were we must leave to other and more learned historians. We are not at the moment particularly concerned with such trivial matters.

What we are trying to come at is this. At what time in the history of the world did woman quit being radical and become conservative? It is a very important question. For at no very remote date women all over the world are going to be enfranchised and are going to the polls to record their beliefs in themselves, and in the policies of the day, and in men.

So it is interesting at this time to fix the period at which they became conservative, and we judge that it must have been about the time that Solon posted up his laws in the public square and fled.

It is evident from the special law which we have accurately quoted, that woman up to the time of Solon had not been conservative. She went out at night without torch-bearers and without chariots (which we may compare with the modern motor car, no doubt) and she wore very few garments. She was a radical.

Since that early period woman has been steadily throwing off radicalism and putting on more clothes. For a long time she refused to go out at night under any circumstances. Then she began going out at night only when surrounded by bustles and crinolines—and so forth.

And if you want her to go out now, either night or day, you will have to swathe her in about one thousand dollars worth of furs and put her in a chariot with torches front and rear and gongs and hooters all over it.

Which, deftly, leads us to our subject: The women's vote in the United States. On Tuesday, November 2, 1920, for the first time in the history of the United States, and possibly in the history of the world, every woman had the proud privilege of going to the polls and voting according to the dictates or her heart and conscience and instinct, and, if you like, her mind. But we prefer to think that in the great days to come woman will continue to be ruled and to rule, by her heart and conscience.

In this, her first real opportunity to give expression to her age-long ideals, a wonderful issue was presented to her. A League of Nations to prevent war had been formed and the question presented to the American woman was this:

Ought the United States to join such a league?

Under the specific conditions of the Covenant of this League, the various sovereignties of the world were to remain undisturbed, indefinitely. Every country was to hold what it had. All the nations ratifying the Covenant were to agree not only to this but were to agree, if it should become necessary, to send troops abroad, to other countries, to fight other peoples about matters of no particular concern to women, to preserve the world as it is.

All the other nations (forty odd, and not counting the late enemy countries, nor Russia) all the other countries, where men control, saw nothing wrong about the arrangement. But the women of America, given their first vote (not forgetting that those who could vote in 1916 voted for Wilson on the slogan "He kept us out of the war") these women of America saw something wrong about the arrangement. It might mean sending their men and boys away from home again to fight in God only knows what cause! And against God only knows what people!

And the lesson we are to draw from this first full vote of the American women, is this, briefly, that the women of all the world, if given the vote, will vote against sending their men away from home to fight other peoples. And that so, in the end, they will, without the aid of any League of Nations, end war. The women, in other words, prefer to do their fighting at home—where, Solon or no Solon, they always win, God bless 'em!

Soft-Drink Frauds

All is not orange juice that is orange colored, nor is it orange juice because it comes in a bottle with an attractive picture of that fruit on the label, according to officials of the Bureau of Chemistry, the United States Department of Agriculture. The wise in this era of soft drinks read the label critically before they buy or drink the contents of the bottle, the advice of the Federal food officials goes on.

The juice of the orange is one of the most healthful of beverages, they say. It contains organic acids of medicinal value and substances known as vitamines which are essential to health. But the trouble is that many of the so-called orange drinks which are on the market contain none of the real orange juice.

These imitations are usually concocted of sweetened, artificially carbonated water, colored with a dye to imitate orange juice and flavored with a little oil from the peel of the orange. While they may not contain ingredients injurious to the health of adults, they are imitations which lack the medicinal qualities characteristic of fruit juices. They should not be used in place of genuine orange juice, the officials say, especially as a food for babies and young children. A few of the bottled drinks do contain some of the genuine fruit, but when orange juice is needed in the diet of children the best way to obtain it is to buy fruit and press out the juice.

The information as to what a bottle of soft drink contains ordinarily can be found on the label but sometimes a magnifying glass may be required, if the thirsty one does not have strong eyes. The manufacturer is usually very modest in displaying this information, but to conform with the Federal Food and Drugs act he must place it on the label. The terms "ade," "squash," "punch," "crush" and "smash" can only be applied correctly to beverages which contain the edible portion of the fruit or juice of the fruit named on the label, Bureau of Chemistry officials say, but this year many beverages with fanciful names, beverages which are imitations of fruit juices and which have only the odor or flavor of the fruit of which they purport to be the juice are being placed on the market.

The officials in charge of the enforcement of the Federal Food and Drugs act have instituted proceedings to require correct labeling of the products coming within the jurisdiction of that law. In the meantime, pending judicial determination as to what is correct labeling of these products under the law, some manufacturers are continuing to put their deceptively labeled drinks on the market. Attention is called to the fact that the soft-drink industry is largely a local industry. Many of the bottled soft drinks are sold and consumed within the State where they are made. Such drinks are not subject to the Federal Food and Drugs act, which applies only to foods and drugs that enter interstate or foreign commerce or that are made or sold within the District of Columbia or a Territory.

BE A SPORT

From Forbes Magazine

You may call yourself dull in a fit of despair,
Or drop all your pep, and say you don't care,
But I'll tell you, my friend, that's a habit to break,
In planning this world not a single mistake
Was made in the building. So when you complain
Take stock of yourself. You're the chap that's to blame.
Just right about face; it may hurt some, it's true.
But that's just the way any good sport would do.
When you wake in the morning don't look for a cloud.
You know what's behind it. Just swing in the crowd.
Be one of them, cheerfully singing along.
You may get a bump, but don't stop your song.
Perhaps one will hear it who needs just a bit
Of encouragement now. Your song may be it.
What matter if yesterday's failures were big?
Today is your day, so get in and dig.
If you meet any trouble, why just change its name
And call a ladder. They oft lead to fame.
But whatever you do, be quick and begin it;
You never can tell just how much there is in it.

Approaching America -:- By W. L. George

(New York Times)

The brilliant W. L. George, author of Caliban, is very much in the public eye at present. This delightful narrative was written by him aboard the steamship which brought him recently from England to the United States. It may surprise us that this talented writer delayed so long in visiting the land of the free, but this does not impair the flavor of the article. On the contrary, it gives it zest. We learn with deep attention that on the other side of the water it is still common knowledge among many that Americans eat green corn for breakfast, and that between gulps of ice water they lead a frantic existence on aeroplanes, "if possible," on motor omnibuses, underground railways, elevated cars and taxis.

The American husband! The American woman! What is the life in "those United States" where Mr. George is going to spend the next six months of his life?

In this most engaging of articles he tells us his anticipations, and then, in an illuminating little paragraph, gives us the first of his discoveries. It is excellent reading to those who desire to know something about Mr. George as a writer, and also what he thought of America before he visited America.

CHAPTER I

Moonlight Sonata

The bows of the liner rise from the sea. The sea is dark as a green plum. We cut across the pathway of the moon that rides high. All sleep upon the ship; it is the middle watch. All eyes are closed, save those watchful ones upon the bridge. I am alone. I am mesmerised by the leaden waters that fall away as parted walls, yield in silence, and forsake our train. We move, and it is as if we moved not, contented pilgrims and minions of the moon, of the moon that draws her narrow snowfield across the salt, estranging sea.

I am alone on a traveling island, for an hour abandoned to me by the crowded beings that make its anonymous cargo. For them speak the dim gold of the taffrail lamps and the negligent volutes of swan-gray smoke which linger behind our funnels. Indeed, our quadruple screws revolve as hands of velvet through a sea soft and complacent as space. Yet the secret shouldering of the turbines, turn by turn, draws me closer to the unknown land. Experience approaches and I am a little afraid; experience that approaches has all its terrors and its compensations only in retrospect. America is still far away, but her encounter is inevitable. Does she lie already in the pallor of the horizon beyond the breaking of the moon?

CHAPTER II

The Steward Orates

I do not want to go to bed. I have no complaint to make against my cabin. I know, but I cannot help thinking of the sea chantey that Rutland Barrington made popular:

"You bark your shins, you bump your head.
Your knees are up to your nose in bed"

I want all through this blazing night to walk the promenade deck that now belongs to me and by day belongs to so many people. The great ship is a crowded city; by night she is a derelict. Still, what's the good? man must sleep away one-third of his natural life. So to bed, as Mr. Pepys would say. But, as I go, I observe a figure seated in a recess. Its outline reveals a night steward pretending with imperfect success to be completely awake. I pause before him. I am sorry for him, this lonely creature of the night in whose accustomed eyes, no doubt, the frosty fire of the stars has come to burn dim. We were alone and so we became human to each other, as two mariners shipwrecked upon an island. I might ask him what he thinks of the weather prospects; or suggest to him that the day's run wasn't bad: parlor conversation has its laws on board ship as on land. But instead of that, I say to him: "We will be in on Sunday, I gather. I am feeling very excited."

He does not at first reply. The steward is a very tall man, very thin, with flat, dry, slightly sunken cheeks, a pursed mouth. He is made mainly of bones held together by a well tanned hide. Evidently he does not want to talk. But he is polite. So he replies: "I guess so, that first time."

This sympathy encourages me. "It's going to be wonderful," I say. "I've been told that the entry into New York is one of the great sights of the world. The skyscrapers thrusting up to heaven, the shipping and the crowds and all that."

To which he replies: "Yep. I guess it'll start you rubbernecking."

This unsettles me. Fellow of all men though I be, too many years of England have accustomed me to servility in menials. This human creature must be a real, real Yank. From one of those hard New England states, from Maine, because that's the northern limit. So I say, "What part of America do you come from?"

"New Mexico."

I internally despair. How is one to know these things?"

"Well," he adds, "it's a long time since I was home, and me earning my living on the sea." I become paralysed. This form of sentence recalls Connemara or Donegal. "Yes," he says, in reply to a question, "I'm from Kilkenny."

KINDER GET SHUFFLED

I nearly give it up. The rankest looking Yank I have seen is an Irishman who comes from New Mexico. I comment on this. I suggest to him that this mixture of origins and locations defines the national breed—that, in a way, internationalism defines America. He does not quite see what I mean, so sums up: "In the States one kinder gets shuffled."

"Once a foreigner always an American?" I suggest.

He grows interested. Differing in this from the average Englishman, he takes note of a general question. He points his view that "in the States one kinder gets shuffled" by telling me that he has married a Swede and that his small children bring home friends with German and Italian names, but that you can't tell them one from the other. He hasn't read The Melting Pot, has never heard of Mr. Zangwill. When I state Mr. Zangwill's theory that America will absorb the nations of the world and melt them down into unity he grows sarcastic and guesses that this talented writer knows how to hand out the dope. I resume my enthusiasm, though I realise that by now I must be boring him stiff.

"You know," I say, "it's a wonderful thing for a European to go to America. There is something half romantic in your long struggle for freedom, in the fight of the Sons of Liberty, who upset George III. One can't help thrilling to the thought that in America opportunity is open to all men, that there are no class distinctions, that people stand by what they can do and not by some sort of aristocratic label. All that gives one something to look forward to."

The steward stares at me cynically. "Well, all that sounds kinder familiar. Pity you weren't over on the Fourth. 'Cause that kinder talk'll stay in the cyclone cellar until next Fourth."

"You don't mean that democratic institutions, . . . ?"

"Are, you might say, an annual occasion. That's so."

"But, look here, you, an Irishman, you've got no illusions about Europe?"

The tanned skin for the first time creases into a smile to reveal several gold teeth. "Illusions?" he says. "Well, I was a boob once, but I ain't collected no new illusions as I went along. Illusions don't grow in the U.S.A. America may be the land of the free, but it ain't the land of free drinks. I got a hunch that's what Englishmen think when they cross over. They find out."

WOMEN AND MORALS

The brief pronouncement is a little discouraging, so I shift the conversation to women, a ground together more sympathetic and more familiar. "I'm told that I am going to be dazzled by the beauty of the American women."

"I reckon you will. You'll see more live things on Broadway in an hour than you'll have time to break your neck over in a year."

"Oh!" I protest, "I'm not going over with Mormonic intentions."

"Better not. You'd have the cops after you if you did!" For the first time enthusiasm enters the steward's voice. "You know, you can't get fresh in the States. Knocking around in London and Southampton as I do, it sort of makes you compare things. One thing an Englishman's got to realise is, America's pure."

"But," I cry, "I've been reading a novel about seamy New York by David Graham Phillips."

"Never heard of him."

"Well, there's Reginald Wright Kauffmann."

"Novels ain't true, are they? I don't know why anybody wastes his time over them."

"No more do I," I reply with understanding: "But a stranger must get his impression when he can, and the little I know about American women I can only get from books."

"American women," repeated the steward meditatively, "they're like the rest. Women are all alike. Some are worse."

"That's rather a cynical view," I remark. "But don't you think the American woman may be different from the others? This boat is full of them, and already I seem to have noticed a seriousness I am not accustomed to in their English sister, a desire to inform themselves, an interest in literature, and ideas, a keenness which is quite new to me."

"It won't be new long," replies the steward, bitterly. Then, cautiously: "Of course, if you've married an American" . . .

I reassure him. I even make an allusion to the American husband. As he is an American husband this seems to inflame the steward. He evidently has a grievance.

"People come over," he grumbles. "They kinder stick a pin through the American. Like a beetle. And put him in a museum. With a label round his neck: 'American husband. Guaranteed not to wear and tear.'" I laugh. This does not mollify him: "People in England say to me that the women have it all their own way in America. They seem to think we throw a million dollars into the lap of the old woman and tell her to go out and buy a shirt-waist. That we haven't a mind of our own. That we hang gifts on the Christmas trees. That our way of doing business is to knock at the wife's door and ask, 'Say, Mamie, what do you want me to think?' That's the American husband's program, according to the English." I protest that he exaggerates. To which he briefly replies: "I didn't start the exaggeration." Then he sketches me the American husband as a man of blood, whose womankind tremble at his frown, who returns from his daily carnage in office or factory demanding to be entertained by pretty faces, good clothes, pleasant gossip, and who is not to be contradicted.

I seem to recognise this type. Can it be universal. Can it be that my vision of the American husband, with a face by Harrison Fisher and a soul by Gene Stratton-Porter, is also an exaggeration? Are all my ideas of America exaggerated? I suggest this to the steward, but he seems conscious of having been libeled in some obscure way. From the heights of his philosophic observation he describes a most unsatisfactory America, where meals, morals and manners recall those of the continent I have left behind, where idealism takes its proper place in the train of advantage, where people make pianos and ashtrays, as we do; play the first and fill the second, as we do; where railway trains run on wheels, and where cows have four legs. This is most disappointing. Such an expensive journey to find in the New World only the Old World—more so. I won't believe it. America cannot be like Europe; she couldn't be so silly. America must be different. She shall be different. To me, Columbia shall be the Gibson Girl. She shall embody all my illusions, even though the steward says one doesn't acquire new ones as one goes on. Is he a wise man, or just a man embittered by his life between two worlds, like a squirrel in a wheel at the mercy of the turbines, between two worlds, and of none? So I leave him. He loads me with no final message. In direct sentences he has said what he had to say, using the world "Yep" only once, and the word "Nup" not at all. Already he is returning to that state of wakefulness which so successfully conceals slumber.

CHAPTER III

Dependents

"To go away," said a French writer, "is to die a little." Then, if the converse be true, to arrive is somewhat to be born. I am ready to believe this, to believe that when this ship moors under the shadow of the Statue of Liberty (what florid rhetoric! but Englishmen have to say that sort of thing) I shall be conscious of rebirth, of an intellectual childhood which American experience must inform. I hope so. Still, to go away is to die a little, and I cannot help being conscious that, while this gliding liner takes me toward America, it takes me away from England, from good-humored tolerance and boiled leg of mutton. These two items are, I think, a fairly comprehensive definition of England. I wonder what is happening in the house I left behind me. Are its temporary masters chipping the paint? Upsetting soup upon the carpets? But my house was already middle-aged before Queen Victoria ascended her throne. It has stood paint-chipping and soup-spilling for generations, and taken it with aloof superiority, as is the nature of an English house. My house will go on as usual, while I race to the fortieth floor in express elevators. What this English house doesn't like it will ignore.

But, the live things? I find my memory filled with two partings. One from my son John. He is a burly John Bill, twenty-two months old, animated solely by desire for silver things that glitter, tins that rattle, and, unfortunately, cats that scratch. My son John enjoyed our departure. He was delighted when the Saratoga trunk crashed down a flight of stairs. He liked the agitation. He created a fine collection of objects dropped in the hurry. He also quietly packed in my cabin trunk some vegetable items from the kitchen which I could have done without. No, John doesn't know that to go away is to die a little. It is true that he is staying, not going, so he doesn't care—he is young enough to perceive only delights and to experience few pains. And yet, with brutal sentimentality, we tried to make him perceive pain. I have in my mind a picture of my wife, determined to explain to him that we were going to America for six months, and asking if he wasn't sorry. But he showed no emotion.

My cats are different. Those two, the Persian and the Russian, they know that to go away is to die a little. Quite a week before anything began they suspected that something was going to happen. They observed that our feet went quicker. Drawers were opened which are generally shut; when my domestic fauna climbed in to investigate the contents of these drawers, as is the way of all cats, they were received by the smell of naphtha. This, being from their point of view an intentional insult, drove them to the top of the house. They no doubt expected that in time things would settle down. They are cats who know life; they have lived through dancing, the piano, the gramophone, and even babies. But things didn't settle down. Heavy cubic objects, made of leather, were dragged about, creating an effect of Wagnerian horror. People began to shout up and down stairs. My cats cannot bear shouting, their vision of life is an endless series of velvety days, when nothing happens except meals, when the sun comes punctually to warm them, and when even the mice are at rest.

The tragedy of my cats is too tragic to be described here. As the Saturday of our sailing drew nearer, more trunks were dragged down; more cries were heard; the telephone, which they know to be a devil, jarred their nerves all day long. The typewriter, another devil, made strange sounds at night. Their usual sleep of sixteen hours a day was reduced to twelve, because people broke into their slumbers by shouting to each other, "Where are my white ducks?" or, "Do you think one can buy tooth powder in America?"

So my cats retreated into dark corners, but people pursued them to see if anything was secreted there which ought to be taken to the States. They hid under tables; people tore rugs from under their paws. They, that had been what they'd been, as Mr. Kipling would say, prosperous, respected, objects of adulation, became wild-eyed, driven (but not dumb) cattle, wretched spectators in the strife. We did not say goodby. Their spirit was too wholly broken by the motor car outside, which sang the song of motor cars in unusually loud tones. My last memory of the Persian is of a ball of flame on the top of a wardrobe, where nobody can touch him, at least he hopes so. The burning orange of his coat is as at sunset a fleecy cloud. The black lunes of his topaz eyes are stretched by terror. He is banded as a bow, lustrous and fearful; instinct and experience bid him venture no unwise traffic with these human beings whose feet are massive and voices as loud as the Last Trump.

All our trunks are strapped upon the car. We are nearly gone. I turn at the door to look at him once more, this flaming idol upon the wardrobe. Already intensity is receding from the watery agate of his eyes. He looks at me reproachfully and he says: "You're going. A good riddance." For a moment we say farewell thus. Then a new thought enters his mind; he squats; his pink tongue, like the petal of a peony, edges the pale bluntness of his nose. He looks away from me, forgets me and begins to wash the thick, silky fur of his flank.

CHAPTER IV

Anticipations

And still I don't want to go to bed. Can I already be turning into an American? Do not smile: we, in Europe, know that Americans never go to bed. At least my anticipations are as follows: 8 a.m., breakfast: green corn; plenty of fruit; grapenuts; coffee, ice water. Hike around till 1:10 p.m. in taxis, motor omnibuses, underground railways and elevated railways. Aeroplanes if possible. Visit nine stores, one cathedral, two dime museums. 1:10 to 1:15, lunch. 1:15 to 2:30, hiking around as above. Visit four stores and the movies. 2:30 to 4:30, theater, i. e., sitting still while other people rush about. 4:30, no tea, ice water. 4:30 to 6:45, two receptions, one boxing match, four stores and the movies resumed. Hiking around in the intervals of these. Change for these. 7:30, dinner: Blue points, canvas-backed duck, waffles, pumpkin pie. Rush to to theater. 11:30, theater over; automobile remove one (at 70 miles an hour) to supper. Blue points, canvas-backed duck, etc., as before. Ice water. Midnight, 420-horsepower automobile removes us to moonlight picnic. (It is understood that this can take place only in a neighboring state.) Picnic: blue points, canvas-backed duck, etc., as before. Ice water. Return of the automobile, still faster, the hamper being empty. Home at 5:30 a.m. Several friends from Oregon arrive with introduction. One puts them into an automobile and hikes around to see the East Side, the workers rushing over Brooklyn Bridge and Gansevoort Market, 8 a.m., breakfast; green corn, plenty of fruit, etc., as before. Ice water.

You may think I am exaggerating, but that is the picture which we create out of our conversations with Americans and out of American novels and magazines. You must place yourself into the frame of mind of one who has never been to America and who builds his picture of it through inaccurate observation and lyrical imagination.

In regard to the country toward which I am moving my mind is virgin soil, save for the presence of intellectual frenzies. Notably I am expecting to be rather puzzled by the language. I shall, no doubt, be put wise after a short residence in the greatest country on the foot-stool, but in the mean time I shall probably find it difficult to get down to brass tacks without the help of a dictionary. It is all going to be very strange. It is going to be very strange to reside in a country where puritanism is so extreme that a picture of a dancer is prosecuted if it appears in the press, while at the same time sartorial liberalism is such that she can wear a costume which would not be allowed in London.

It wasn't England who thought of wrapping up table legs for the sake of decency; it was New England. It wasn't England invented the pneumonia blouse; it may not have been New England, but it was America. So, in advance, I construct a strange model, which we may call the American Janus, with two faces, one that frowns as a Pilgrim Father, the other crowned in Bacchic vine leaves. Yet I find it difficult to fit definite features to the American Janus. The Americans I have met seem to fall mainly into two types: one of them lean and dry, with long cheeks, the traditional Uncle Sam, the other, burly and broad-headed. The old dry Uncle Sam seems sacrastic and Scotch; the new American may hark back to the slender influences of the Dutch ancestors of New Amsterdam. Janus massive, or Janus lean? Which is it?

There is certainly much to puzzle me in the American. One thing is that I don't always understand his form of humor. It is more direct than that of the English, more economical of words. The Englishman's idea of a joke is long preparation followed by shock. The good American joke consists solely in shock, and I think it lies to the credit of your country that you invented the shortest joke on earth; the proprieties, however, to which the English are so attached, prevent my reproducing it here.

I have a vision of the hotels I am going to visit, to say nothing of their bills. I rather look forward to the hotels themselves, to their sixty floors, their dancing halls on the roof, their reproductions of the seaside in the basement. But I am nervous when I reflect on the labor-saving bedroom, with its button for fresh air, button for hot air (essential to writers), ice-chest, electric heater, radiator, bed lights, letter chute and automatic telephone. It is going to be shattering. I know that before I have done I shall try to obtain a small glass of lemonade and find that I have been put through to the Governor of California. It is all going to be very modern, as well as very swift. And I'm not wholly modern; I haven't even been up in an aeroplane. And the bill! You've no idea how terrified we are of the American bill. And I understand that I shan't get my boots cleaned for six months. It is going to be very exciting.

THE VISION OF THE CINEMA

I am afraid that part of our vision of America comes to us through the cinema and the operator does turn the handle so fast. He opens and closes so many doors simultaneously. He piles before our modest European eyes such costly furs, upon such beautiful women, in such enormous automobiles. Can it be that the cinema exaggerates? Surely there must be an America both sleepy and cheap! As I look at the map and read names such as Concord, N. H., or Greeley, Colo., I tell myself that this modest lettering cannot represent a cinemic America. But rumor and the cinema are too strong for us, and there rises before my eyes a vision of the really rich man's home, a combination by Frank Norris and Miss Lillian Barrett. It stands on Fifth Avenue, or on Riverside Drive; it has a forecourt of Byzantine mosaic roofed in Carrara marble. Columns. Fountain. Goldfish. Staircase of wrought iron, from a French Renaissance chateau. Black oak panels, linen pattern, from a ducal mansion in Somersetshire. Drawing room: Walls upholstered in George III brocade, Marie Anstoinette's own chairs, Chopin's piano, Omar Khayyam's carpet. You see we think you very rich. We are also impressed in advance by your achievements in comfort. We imagine the rich American's bathroom: Walls made of plate glass, crystal bath, gold taps. Of course, sixteen appliances for hot water, cold water, scented water, medicated water, Russian bath Turkish bath, shower bath, needle bath; the others do not occur to my European simplicity. And so on. Beyond the house the garage for the automobiles, the hangar for the planes, the kennel for the late Empress of China's Pekingese, the stable for the Derby winners. Yes, the European imagination does get some way when it dwells on real American luxury, when it encourages its vision of the Gainsborough in the servants' hall, and of the Velasquez in the kitchen. It creates a picture of America that is a midsummer madness, a pageant of wealth, energy and fantasy. It makes ready to meet the roughness of the Virginia pioneer, the sophistication of the æsthetes of Greenwich Village, the octopus struggle of Wall Street, and the reposeful lawns of Harvard and Yale. It creates the American scene in the highest colors. It prepares to enter what Mr. Wells calls the pleasure cities. It figures a country together Oriental and scientific, a dream and business, too.
